Mr. Barker was born January 25, 1841, near Littlestown. His parents, Joseph and Cassie (Utehl) Barker, were natives of Chester and York counties, and there was, Albert, acquired his education in the public schools of his native town. His studies were interpersed with a view to the medical profession, but he abandoned this idea at the age of 17 years, upon the request of his father. When a young man he was clerk in mercantile establishments and hotels in Pennsylvania, and during the Civil War volunteered as a nurse to attend the sick and wounded of the second battle of Bull Run.

His connection with the Littlestown Union Sunday School, at 8 a. m. Rev. W. J. Beach, Greenmanville and A. R. Kohr Esq., of Hanover, met in York on Tuesday. Among other business transacted was the ensuring of quarters for the session of 1912 to begin the last Friday of July and continue ten days.

In this capacity he had charge of a ward in the general hospital, but was several times detailed for field hospital duty. He was in the service about four months

On the 2d of January, 1864, he was married at Littlestown, Md., to Miss Ellen R. Carbaugh. In 1865 he embarked in the mercantile business in Littlestown and followed it for 11 years. He was postmaster at Littlestown from 1865 to 1885.

In March, 1886, he purchased the "Hanover Herald," now known as "Hanover," located in Hanover which he refitted and refurnished and conducted for a time locally, and then removed it to the "Barker House." April 1, 1889, the property was acquired by the late Peter H. Strohinger, of a bicycle race on the road was conducted under several proprietors, until the death of Mr. Strohinger's widow, who leased by the hotel to the latter. Mrs. W. A. Nicks.

He leaves a widow, one brother Charles B. Barker, of Littlestown, and four sisters, Mrs. Charles T. Kump, Hanover; Mrs. William T. Howard, of Reddinsville, N. J.; Mrs. Elsie Miller and Mrs. Benjamin Yount, of Littlestown.

Funeral Thursday, November 23, services at the house at 1.30 p. m., conducted by the A. M. Hollinger, pastor of St. Matthew's Lutheran Church. Interment in Mt. Olivet cemetery, Hanover.

JOHN RUDISILL

John Rudisill died Tuesday evening, November 14, at his home in Reedsville at the age of 78 years.

Mr. Rudisill was a retired farmer, and moved to the neighborhood of Hanover a number of years ago. He is survived by his wife and the following children: Gilbert, Clarke, Albert and J. S. Rudisill; Mrs. Milton Ropley, Mrs. Harry Snyder and Mrs. Daisy Biddle, all living in the vicinity of Reedsville.

Funeral Friday, November 24, brief services at the house at 10 a. m., further services and interment at St. Luke's Church, near Bonneauville. Rev. Irvin Lau officiating.

MRS. ELI O. CRABER

Mrs. Eli O. Craber died Wed. evening at her home in Bonneauville, aged 73 years.

She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Johnston H. Shelly and with her husband, moved from Gettysburg in 1868. She leaves her husband, several children and the following brothers and sisters, Charles E. Shelly, of Dayton, Ohio; Colonel George M. Shelly, of Springfield, Illinois; John A. Shelly, of Chicago; Daniel A. Shelly, Mrs. Annie M. Shelly and Miss Sarah J. Shelly, of Gettysburg.

SMALL POX IN YORK HOSPITAL

A fresh quarantine was placed upon the York Hospital Wednesday following the discovery of two more cases of smallpox in the institution. The disease was brought there about two weeks ago when a patient with it was diagnosed only after he had been at the hospital several days.

The quarantine recently established, all patients and nurses were vaccinated and there was no more spreading of the only sanitary hospital

The new victims are Miss Hyde, who has been in the surgical ward two weeks suffering from a broken leg, and Rauhauser, a 2 year old medical patient, who had been admitted a short time before the disease was found to have been taken to the sanitary hospital, and the fight to prevent an epidemic of the disease is today renewed to the city.

BLOW BLEW BACK

POSTOFFICE SAFE

Loot amounting to nearly $1,000 in stamps and money, was secured by robbers from the postoffice safe in the Rock post office. The robbery was discovered early yesterday before the Sunday morning when Postmaster Granville P. Hutchens went to the office, and on opening the door found the safe shattered and the contents missing. There have been no clues to the robbery, but the case will be investigated by the postoffice department at Washington, D.C., who were notified.

BUSIEST DAY IN SENTENCE COURT

Thirteen Prisoners Face Court for Sentence. Pittenturf Sentence Deferred until December 4 owing to Uncertainty.

Sentence court drew a crowd of several hundred people on Saturday afternoon, all the available seating space being used while many stood in the aisles. The principal matter of interest, the case of James Pittenturf, was taken up last and after conference between the Court, District Attorney Neely and D. F. McPherson, Esq., Pittenturf's counsel, it was decided to defer pronouncing his sentence until December 4. the term given at that time dating from Saturday, November 18.

Under the Act of 1909 there could be no alternative but a sentence of thirty years for Pittenturf as he had been sentenced twice before in terms of not less than a year in a Penitentiary each and the law provides that the third sentence shall be for thirty years. The last legislature, however, enacted a new law regarding the sentencing of prisoners which is not explicit on the matter and there was some uncertainty Saturday as to whether or not the provisions of the old law regarding the third sentence remained in effect. It was stated that no court had yet ruled on the matter and the additional time was given to investigate the matter more fully.

Aaron Linsman pleaded guilty to a charge of assault and battery. The offense was declared to be technical, Mr. Kinsman resenting with force an insult to his niece. The suit was brought by Charles Kunnard, found guilty during the week of carrying concealed weapons. Sentenced to pay costs of prosecution amounting to about $105.00.

James Delaney, 85 years old, of Brooklyn, N. Y., found guilty of assault and battery on Chief Shuler was given his freedom, having already served four months in jail and ordered that he would be out of town "in five minutes" by sound. Sentence was accordingly suspended, the prisoner promising good behavior in the future.

James Johnson pleaded guilty of a charge of aggravated assault. He was one of the Baltimore negroes concerned in the fracas at the time of an excursion in June in which there was some shooting, another negro being struck three times by bullets from Johnson's revolver. He was given a penitentiary sentence of not less than six months or more than three years.

Charles Mummert, found guilty of carrying concealed weapons and remembered in the person of the court was reprimanded for the offense. Judge Bowps then took occasion to speak of the danger of carrying weapons and referring to the Pennsylvania Supreme decision. Fine of $60 and the costs amounting to about $60.00 were imposed.

Paul Chevalier, of East Berlin, pleaded guilty to shooting his brother in-law, Curtis Lash, of East Berlin to the acts following an altercation. William Hersh, his attorney, said in his behalf that Chevalier was desperate at the time of the crime and had purchased the revolver to commit suicide. Mr. Lash also appeared to ask pardon in view of Chevalier's family, a wife, three young children and an aged mother. A jail sentence of one month was imposed.

George Hudson, of Lisebrun, was given another month in jail. Hudson, it will be recalled, got a dollar and a dinner from H. S. Bender and Dr. Musselman, alleging that he had had his money at home and that his wife would be in later to make a purchase or have some drugs. He got the dinner so as excuse for the notice, however, was a counsel, well versed in all carpenter and law. When Judge Bowps asked the prisoner what he had to say he answered in "Dutch"—and sentence was imposed.

Billy Miller, of Union township, pleaded guilty to stealing certain articles from Harry J. Wantz. It was brought out that Miller had not been in the defendant at home and that Miller finally got some on his own promise and on the faith for identity them. The case, after some delay, and only after Miller had made restitution of the goods, the case. Wantz had Miller's father to guarantee the prisoner's good behavior for a year, ordering the defendant released upon the payment by Miller though it was not carried out by the Court Commissioner, the amount.

Jesse Miller, charged with the larceny of a bicycle from Ira Miller, pleaded guilty of the charge. The Court ordered restitution of the property to the owner and the defendant released upon the payment of the costs.

TEACHERS AND PARENTS MEET

Gettysburg Parent Teachers Association Meets in Regular Session, Some Tobacco Dealers not Favorable to Action Taken.

The monthly meeting of the Parent-Teachers Association was held Friday evening in the High School building on York street.

The committee appointed at the October meeting to solicit the co-operation of the business men in town to discourage the sale of cigarettes to minors, reported that they had interviewed some, twenty one who received them kindly and agreed to carry out the Act regulating the cigarette sale. There were only three men who did not receive the committee with favor and approve of the movement. The Women's Christian Temperance Union encouraged the movement by giving their efforts in assisting the association to prevent the sale of cigarettes to minors.

The committee reported that when one dealer was approached he said he would be specially glad to post the Act on the teeth, and have every teacher in the public schools of Gettysburg read it before their pupils.

Mrs. Harry Holtzworth read a paper on "Music and Reading," in which she pointed out that music is not a pastime, or degenerating but leads to higher ideals, and should be considered on a par with education as a necessary of life.

A paper on "The Value of Music and the Development of Character," was read by Rev. F. E. Taylor, in which he synthesized the physical bending to be derived together with the cultivation of high and noble sentiment, transforming power. Eligible cars and pain. Song is the fast friend of gentleness. Noble songs purifies thought and invokes high ideals. "A man who has no song or mood for sweet strains is fit for treason."

The association suggested to the directors who were present to consider the institution of a music course in the High School.

The secretary reported one hundred and seven members on the roll.

The last number on the program was the election of officers to serve for the coming year. The results of the election were as follows: president, Mrs. Will H. Saligman; first president, Mrs. William Arch McClure; secretary, Mrs. Jesse Adams Swanger; Rev. F. E. Taylor.

DON'T WANT DEER KILLED

Says the Chambersburg Public Opinion: "It has been many a day since Public Opinion has heard so many comments as it has in the last few on the couple of stories printed about the slaughter of deer. It is truly amazing the sentiment there is in the community against killing deer in the South Mountain. Some citizens discuss the subject moderately, others get—as one said—red-hot on the subject every time the thought of the pre lim nary extermination of those beautiful creatures comes up."

A PAIR OF COUNTRY KIDS

The above well known play will be on the Wizard Theatre for one night only on Tuesday, November 26, and to lovers of comedy the will be a treat. Ill and Trixie in the "Kids" are delightfully pair and keep things lively during the entire play, and are supported by a first class company of artists. All special scenery is carried and the play has a consistent plot and enough scenation to relieve the audience from being bored by too much comedy. Numerous specialties are introduced.

WILL WORK ALL DURING WINTER

Winter Months will See no Let-up at Federal Building on Days when Temperature is Forty or Higher and Work will be Ahead.

Work at the new federal building will not be suspended during the winter months unless seasonally severe weather should prevent, G. M. Dodrich the government building inspector in charge of the work informed one of the local structors, declaring that on days having a temperature of forty degrees or above the work will continue.

The concrete footings have been finished and now work has been started on the brick foundations. The bricks are being laid in cement mortar which, it is stated, makes a stronger and more durable wall than the ordinary sand mortar. After the bricks have been laid in position for twelve hours, it makes no difference how low the temperature drops, the wall stands as constructed and it is not necessary to tear down and build again on account of cold affecting the work.

The bricks of the Annvm Shale Brick Company are being used for the foundations and engineering most satisfactory, J. S. Fantini who represents the company informs the contractor saying "I have now been in the business for eighteen years and I can see the best bricks of the kind I have ever seen for the purpose. So many bricks are hard as those do not have the smooth edge but those meet all require ments."

With these hard bricks laid in cement mortar and the proper protection of the building will be about as near perfect as can be constructed.

Sic masons who work for the contractor are expected any day from Philadelphia. The masons are said to been at work on another post office building and have finished the work on the contract. They will lay the entire foundation and the height of the grade is expected to be reached by the masons before Christmas

HAMM IN COUNTY JAIL, SPONSELLER'S CONDITION REMAINS UNCHANGED

Albert Hamm, of Littlestown, who is charged with attempting to kill Chester Sponseller onthe Friday morning of the Littlestown fair, is in the county jail in Gettysburg. He was brought here Friday afternoon by Officer Kiser of Hanover, and Constable Bair of Littlestown, under the custody of the sheriff. Hamm's condition remains unchanged. It is serious but his recovery is possible provided blood poisoning does not follow.

When Hamm was arrested he was in bed at his home. He denied all knowledge of the affair and when his clothing was examined no blood was found. He tried in vain to secure bail which Justice Lilly had placed at $5,000 and also refused to talk to the magistrate stoutly his innocence in the matter though a telephone message from Hanover on Saturday stated that there were several witnesses who had seen the two men start out on their race towards Littlestown.

Sponseller's condition is good but has lately been engaged in the butcher business with Mr. Hamm, deceased. He is married. Sponseller has a number of friends in town, about Gettysburg and is well known here.

TO MANAGE BRICK PLANT

Wm. H. Johnston, now of Fairfield, will have charge of the new brick and brick plant near Waynesboro. He will remove to Waynesboro in the near future. He has had abundant experience, having been connected with a brick plant for the Daniel Johnston, and having been engaged in brick making in Waynesboro for a number of years until recently.

The new plant proposes to manufacture soft and brick on an extensive scale and has already secured contracts for its product, there and nearby.

It is a short tree the lumber for the buildings will be sawed out of the timber standing on the farm which the firm purchased.

MRS. WILLIAM SHILLEN

Mrs. Catherine Shillen, widow of William Shillen, died at her home in Cissellell on Friday evening, aged seventy-three years.

Mrs. Shillen, whose maiden name was Sonnen, lived on Baltimore street, Gettysburg, for a number of years. She was a sister of the late Mrs. William Martin and was the last member of the family. She has several sisters and a number of more distant relatives living here. She leaves a son, Lawrence Shillen, and a daughter, Mrs. John Stock, both of Cissellell.

Funeral in Cissellell Monday.

MORE NEWS FROM THE DEER CAMPS

William Flemming, of Gettysburg, Shoots Fine Buck. Monterey Club Has Three Deer, Arendtsville Two Individual Hunters Successful.

The reports from the mountains tell of more deer being brought down by hunters in camp for the fortnight of open season are by individual hunters.

The Monterey club has thus far, with the two "bucks" and "does." Three deer have been shot by its members, two on each day of the open season. The third was killed at 10:45 o'clock Friday morning, by William Flemming, a prominent member of the club. He brought down a 140 pound, 4-pronged buck. A telephone message from the Monterey club says that they have left camp.

The Arendtsville club got their second buck on Friday.

A hunter in Chambersburg told that he had shot and wounded a deer in the Caledonia park region, and followed it a mile before he came upon it, dead.

There have been reports of several deer found shot in the woods that were evidently killed by mistake by the hunters.

Irvin Strowen, Greenwood shot a 7-pronged buck. Thursday morning not far from Orrtanna. Mr. Strowen and his father, who were hunting together, were within about two miles to the trolley when they heard a commotion in the bushes and saw the form of the deer. Both fired at the deer at the same instant. The buck sprang side by side. Simpson's land was more largely covered with timber than Underwood's, and this fact has been a source of trouble. The railroad soon after their settlement on the land was projected to run along the line of their property, and as soon as it was apparent that the timber would be valuable for ties, the land was also has learned Underwood began improving it. He was among the covetous as much of a wood as it could be purchased by cutting on the line between the two properties.

The Underwood timber went out toward his friend's property and found Underwood driving stakes on what he considered to be his own land. His friend, Mr. Simpson, explained to him that that was the dividing line and he was intending to cut the best men notice to fail trees in order to be ready to have the railroad with the ties as soon as there was used. Simpson declared that every tree was valued a certain price would be rubbery. Then the fellowship between the men and the fight was on.

The men began cutting the ax-friends not on the line of dispute, each having an ax with which to fell timber, and before the day was over instead of felling trees they felled each other. But the enemies home to supper, their respective families were told of the fight and soon their cheer dodo bellos, the faculties of both being eleven.

The fight between the men over both families. It was especially deplorable the wound of the augurment of the two young people. From Underwood, it is said that there might be no more trouble, sent to the county seat for a warrant for the arrest of Underwood. It turned out that neither his father nor his friend's friend was right, the true boundry being a diagonal line with the two parties evenly combatting.

Nor was this all that was mistaken in the boundary. The disputed land and long been hurried when the railroad to have purchased and they expected to sell so many tie was discovered to be the boundary line that separated them from the property of either and Simpson was thunderstruck.

One night when Miss Simpson was sleeping in the room next to the kitchen by the sound of axes being driven into the trees on the line. The sound seemed to be to come from the direction of the Underwood home. She got up in bed and listened. The ax men were unmistakably at work. She called her sister striving to strike more rapidly. The girl got up and went into the mother's room to awaken her, but by the time the mother was aroused the noise the sound had ceased.

The next morning when she had told of what she had heard all considered that she had been dreaming. Never theless she declared that she had heard the axes distinctly, the sounds coming from the direction between the Simpsons' and the Underwoods' dwellings. When she told her story, Simpson it he declared that if any such sounds had been heard he would have heard them more readily than his fiancee, for the Underwood home was nearer the line on which the timber bordered him the Simpsons' Elbe, who was positive as to what she had heard. Some him a decision in favor of his lover in court.

Mr. Simpson board again the sounds of axes on the boundary line. Then the double meaning of the words of the two families the conditions had been misunderstood. Mr. Simpson after Elbe's having heard the mysterious men and the axes. Mrs. Simpson and Mrs. Underwood and told of the occurrence. Mrs. Underwood had been under a strain ever since the calamity had upon her mind that will last her and control completely, declaring that her husband had murdered her husband, who acted simply in self defense.

The charge of the man who had killed each other now came to open court. Mrs. Simpson and Miss Elsie and Frank was broken off, and on one of the Simpsons spoke to an Underwood. The members of the younger generation were becoming men and women, and the generation after them inherited the quarrel. As the families multiplied the feud spread. A cherry tree, reaching on the matter to the third generation, declared that he

DEVONER NERVES GOT BEST OF HIM IN WORLDS SERIES.

Josh Devore, the little outfielder of the Giants, made a world's series record in the second game at Philadelphia when he struck out four times. Eddie Plank outmastered him, serving a curve when he looked for a fast ball, and vice versa.

Devore was peeved. He burned to the umpire instead of the ball. When Josh came up for the second time he tossed his bat to where he thought the ball. This time he tried a spare, but Connolly waved it was a ball. It was the same the fourth trip. Connolly declared the strike. Then Devore got on his nerves.

When the third strike was called Devore said something, and Connolly waved him to the bench. Later Connolly visited the conference.

"It is easy to see how you hold your job on the American league," said Devore.

"It's hard to see how you hold yours with the Giants," responded Connolly.

COFFEY COMING CHAMPION.

Californian Has Shown Great Form to Recent Battles.

Walter Coffey, the California middleweight, who has been thrusting all the records in the west for the past couple years of age. He has been a hard worker for the last few years and is stronger and more rugged than the average of the present time of this class.

Coffey put in a lot of time working at the oil wells down in Iowa county, O., before he left for the west. He says he went and the fellows you name up against proved to be the cream of the toughest propositions in the west.

Coffey has a certainty left hand and maneuvers a mean. In the bout with Young Loughrey of Philadelphia in New York every Coffey admirer had a wallow by saving in two of the three rounds battle.

There is no other fighter who rounds are so much of "class" to the boxing amateur. Whether he can fight half as well as many of the boys in brief encounters the ring is a question.

BEATTIE PAYS DEATH PENALTY

With Slayer Electrocuted in Richmond Jail.

HIS LAST DAY ON EARTH

Said Farewell to His Father and Family and Met Fate Like a Man—His Memory Will Be Vindicated After Death.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 24.— Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., was electrocuted in the penitentiary here this morning for the murder of his young wife on the Midlothian pike last July.

When Beattie arose he was given a suit of clothing by superintendent Wood, of the penitentiary. The suit was cut in several pieces so that the usual contents of the black chair could be placed directly against his flesh.

Rev. J. J. Fix and Rev. Benjamin Dennis accompanied the prisoner from his cell into the chair room and gave him spiritual consolation until the last moment

The execution was witnessed by a few of twelve men, Beattie's agent, all advisers, and representatives of the penitentiary and the official electrician

Under the Virginia laws all representatives of newspapers are refused admittance to the death chamber at executions and details of executions are forbidden.

Beattie bid farewell to his relatives yesterday afternoon, his father remaining with him until 8 o'clock last evening. He was also visited by his brother Charles and his sister Mamie and his aunt, Mrs. Sarah Bowman, who remained more than an hour at the door of his cell. The kinfolk conversed in muffled tones, frequently sobbing and tears. The doomed slayer comforted his aged parent and other relatives with words of prayer.

He was left alone in the cell, he told them. Sooner or later the murderer of his wife would be captured and the family honor vindicated, he stoutly asserted.

With tears bathing his cheeks and his frail body trembling, the venerable father clasped his boy in his arms in the embrace of the death house and sobbingly bade him good-by. The grand mother in death cell yielded to the old man's request to open the door and the young murderer step into the hallway that he might be embraced in his father's lap. Then in turn Beattie was smothered with kisses by each of his relatives.

As the cell door lock clicked behind him as he re-entered the low cage, Beattie threw himself upon his cot and bore his grief unrestrainedly, weeping.

While Rev. J. J. Fix remained outside Beattie's cell and tried to calm and comfort the prisoner, Rev. Benjamin Dennis, his other spiritual adviser, tenderly placed his arms around the bereaved father, and, together with Deputie Beattie, assisted him in to the superintendent's office, where he remained some moments to regain his composure and summon sufficient strength to leave the institution

All preparations have been made for a simple funeral service, to be held at the slayer's grave. The grave diggers were busy in the Beattie plot preparing a receptive place for Mrs. Louise Owen Beattie, victim of the tragedy of July 16, for the body of her convicted murderer husband.

The services will be held at and private, no flowers being sent, at the request of the family, and only the immediate kinsfolk of the deceased were present.

FARRAR ORDERED TO QUIT ENGLAND

The Disgraced Royal Chaplain Promptly Disappears.

TRYING TO HUSH MATTER UP

Although Sent For His Arrest Was Issued, Ousted Rector Was Not Taken Into Custody.

London, Nov. 24.—It is believed here that Rev. Frederick Percival Farrar will leave England and that he will not return.

Because of his former position in the church he was not formally taken into custody in spite of the fact that a warrant had been issued for his arrest. To-day matters up a Sandringham, with instructions to bring the case to a speedy issue. In order to avoid the publicity which might follow an arrest.

Rev. Mr. Farrar was told to quit his parish house within twenty-four hours. No doubt he has done this, for a van full of his goods has been found since he disappeared. Because of his birth and his surroundings Rev. Farrar now a great favorite with the royal family, has been spared the disgrace.

After his graduation from Cambridge in 1897 he was made chaplain to the queen. Soon after Queen Victoria presented him with the rectory of Gestner, on the Sandringham estate. He became curate in charge at Sandringham in 1901 and rector in 1903 upon the death of his predecessor. He was also made chaplain to the king and chaplain to the king and to Queen Alexandra, upon their accession. He married, simple, eloquent was much appreciated by the royal family. He preached the last sermon that King Edward heard.

The chaplain was suspected of an unpardonable crime. Rumors of his doings were sent to watch him. He was followed. Finally a warrant for his arrest was taken out for his arrest for sodomy.

He was married to Miss Nora Gowers, daughter of Sir Frederick Gowers, July 6, 1911, at St. Andrews, West Kensington. Queen Alexandra and Princess Victoria were present.

$10,000 VERDICT FOR USING NAME

Woman Wins Suit Against Book Publisher.

New York, Nov. 24.—A jury in the supreme court awarded a verdict of $10,000, the full amount sued for, to Florence Clow Jones after trial of her suit against James L. Perkins, a publisher.

Mrs. Jones, who is a translator, contended that the publisher had used her name, unauthorized by her, in a book of short stories by Guy de Maupassant, which Perkins published. She asserted assistant her knowledge and consent she said.

Basing her complaint on the personal property rights which she claimed to protect an individual assault the use of his or her name by profit by another without the owner's consent, Mrs. Jones declared that she had been subjected to much annoyance and was thereby deprived of the opportunity of doing other literary work.

The specific charges against the publication were that they had caused certain affidavits of non-registered voters to be withheld at the time of the last vote. The condition of the contents of the affidavits were brought into court by very filthy

When the defendants were arraigned Judge Garman entered them severally and plead guilty to conspiracy in the same class as murder. The judge's charge ordinarily did not seem to convict the three election officers.

Police detectives and others are awaiting trial on similar charges.

LABOR LEADERS TO BE TRIED AGAIN

Contempt Not Subject to Statute of Limitations.

Washington, Nov. 24.—Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell and Frank Morrison, the labor leaders, must again stand trial in the supreme court of the District of Columbia on charges of contempt arising out of the Bucks Stove and Range case.

Justice Wright handed down a decision overruling the motion of the labor leaders for a dismissal of the proceedings under the statute of limitations. The court held that contempt of court is not classed as criminal, and consequently not subject to the law of the statute of limitations.

Notice of a special appeal to the court of appeals was filed by counsel for the defendants. This means that no attempt will be made to take the case to the upper courts before testimony is heard.

The supreme court of the United States recently dismissed the original case, but gave the lower court the right to proceed in contempt. At this time the controversy between the American Federation of Labor and the Federation of Labor had been settled. Subsequently, however, Justice Justice Wright took the ground that the dismissal of the original proceedings orders had been violated and again issued orders for action to appear and defend themselves.

In addition to overruling the plea for abatement under the statute of limitations, Justice Wright ruled that the action which charged the court with unreasonable delay in making the decision was not tenable, and on the ground that they were frivolous Justice Wright said:

"Nor does the court say that these charges are not of an affrontive character, but they are not of the specific and perhaps ought to require the court to take notice of them."

Justice Wright declined also to strike out the charges against the two associates that the testimony be taken in open court.

WAR SCARE SHAKES BRITAIN

Sir Edward Grey to Resign From Cabinet.

BRYCE MAY SUCCEED HIM

England Was on Verge of War With Germany Over Morocco—Other Ministers Are Involved.

London, Nov. 24.—The belief prevails in political circles that Sir Edward Grey, secretary for foreign affairs, will retire from the cabinet after his eagerly awaited exposition on foreign relations, Nov. 27, in the house of commons, and that James Bryce, ambassador to the United States, will succeed him.

The statement that the foreign secretary will almost certainly be handed to the public minister should the lack of confidence be shown in his policy during the debate which will follow his statement on Monday.

Sir Edward Grey, who, during the earlier years of his occupancy of the foreign office, received the almost unanimous support of all parties, has recently been the object of considerable attack, not from the opposition, but by members of his own party, and rather the extreme radical element in the party. The secret of the recent diplomatic negotiations have been carried on has aroused the ire of the Radicals, who latterly have received some support from the more moderate Liberals.

The disclosures regarding the Anglo-German conversations with respect to Persia and statements that these two countries were on the verge of war, has given the Radicals another opening, and they are now, it is understood, going to the full extremity of Sir Edward, declaring: "We won't be driven into war with Germany for the reason why."

The recent favor as Anglo-German understanding, and access Sir Edward Grey has had to the king and in this direction, either by his own wish or that of the king, to discuss diplomatic officials in the foreign office. Sir Charles Hardinge, Lord Viscount Haldane, secretary of war, and Colonel Seely, under secretary of war, will likely follow him.

Jame Bryce, who is considered most likely to be his successor, since 1907 has been ambassador to the United States, where he has won the confidence of both parties, and has carried on the reciprocity negotiations between Canada and the United States.

By a tacit understanding the Unionist leaders refrain from criticising the foreign policy, or at least refrain from attacking it. The fact that the Liberals, grave: "Why turn a brilliant foreign minister out of office during the ruling the victor, in order to procure the good will of the Radicals and Irish cause?"

The prime minister, it is true, is under moral obligations to avoid a crisis at the present moment, but it may be beyond his power to do so.

Germany Sure Crisis Is Past.

Cologne, Germany, Nov. 24. — Foreign Secretary von Jagow's Reichstag address on foreign relations was doubtless a German-English coup as regards the Near East, according to apparently inspired dispatch from Berlin in the Cologne Gazette today.

"The acute crisis is past, but a lasting settlement is not. Germany awaits with even greater tension Great Britain's declaration of policy. Upon this will depend the relations of the two countries for the immediate future. They are to be distrusted and injured, or whether a long period of understanding will be brought about. Germany has done everything in her power to avoid the former. The possibility that a war could break out between these two nations is now out without a real question being at issue, but late events have spoken out too clearly."

PRINCE CONSORT HISSED

Dutch Workman Bar Part of Royal Hustling Party.

Amsterdam, Nov. 24.—While Prince Henry and a party were hauling near Utrecht their party was hissed by a score of workmen carrying spades.

The prince is the consort-to-be of the royal party to pass, and they were followed by hisses and shouts

Three Drown From Bath.

Baltimore, Nov. 24.— Three men were drowned at Bay View, a resort of Canton on bay, by the capsizing of their skiff. They were Joseph Hall, Lee, white men, and Abe Chalmers, colored. The latter was one of the life officers for the oyster barges J. C. Dalton and Ida Lee, which were in the vessel when their boat was overturned by a heavy sea.

A. F. of L. to Raise McNamara Fund.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 24.—By a vote of 250 to 7, the convention of the American Federation of Labor rejected all amicable efforts of the federation and appropriated $10,000 for the defense of the two McNamara defense fund. Previous contributions will bring the amount to about $60,000 will thus be added to the fund, now reported to be $50,000.

PARIS EDITORS FIGHT DUEL.

One Wounded in Dispute Over Boundary Linked With Mme. Curie.

Paris, Nov. 24.—A dispute over the merits of the charges against M. Langevin, professor of general and experimental physics at the College of France, brought in his wife and involving the professor's co-worker in scientific research, Mme. Curie, resulted in a duel with swords between M. Charvet, editor of Gil Blas, and Leon Daudet, editor of Action Francaise.

There were several fierce bouts under the cesarean of a song of photographers. Finally Daudet was wounded in the arm. A reconciliation followed.

The charges in which the names of the two eminent scientists, Mme. Curie and Professor Langevin, have been involved have created an immense amount of comment in the French capital and have raised bitter party feeling. The charges were founded on the fact that Mme. Curie visited Professor Langevin at his close association in their scientific research.

The affair is a matter of the first part of Mme. Langevin, who therefore honored her husband's friend, coupling his name with that of Mme. Curie.

Mme. Curie, who was credited conjointly with her husband in the discovery of radium, was, after his death, nominated to succeed to the chair of physics, which he had held at the College of France. She is one of the most noted of the several discoveries valuable to science.

MIGUEL STRIKES FOR CROWN MANUEL LOST

Republican Troops Defeat the Royalist Invaders.

Lisbon (via frontier), Nov. 24.— Miguel, the pretender, has failed in a small group of monarchists, believed to be the vanguard of the main body, has crossed the frontier. It tried to capture Chaves, but was repulsed by republican troops sent out from Braganza.

It is declared that the Duke of Oporto, uncle of ex-King Manuel, will take supreme command of the monarchist forces, and that he will be accompanied by the two princes, Miguel of Braganza, the son of Duke of Braganza throne, and his son.

Chaves is a small town in the province of Minho, was invaded by a force of monarchists from the Galician native republican cachenchos. Armed with bombs, they pillaged houses and other property. A military force has been sent against them.

It is understood in Lisbon that Portugal has decided to take the purchase of the Portuguese part of the Island of Timor, in the Malay archipelago, now divided between Holland and Portugal. The purchase would restore a long-pending boundary dispute between the two countries.

FIGHTING POULTRY TRUST

Indianapolis Dealer to Sell Thanksgiving Turkeys Cheap.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 24.—Indianapolis will be the battle ground of a Thanksgiving turkey shell be within reach of the poorest man in the city, according to Indiana, where he expects to buy 3000 turkeys for the holiday trade.

He has already arranged with 2000 farmers to deliver to him a car of 300 turkeys, 700 chickens and 500 ducks, which will be shipped to him the last week in November.

The turkeys will be fed for a week before they are killed, and the chickens and ducks for a month. The turkeys will sell for 14 cents a pound, the chickens for 12 cents a pound and the butter at 29 cents a pound.

The manufacturer says he expects to arrive also in time for the Thanksgiving trade. He says he will be put on sale on Wednesday, the stores will be open all day and the convience of Thanksgiving buyers.

The dealer declares that what the mayor would bark the poultry trust and that he expects to put a crimp right into his office from many citizens, but that he is not afraid of any of them as he did not lean through his venture.

Catholic Priest Probably Fatally Shot.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 24.—The Rev. Josh Dellutchi, pastor of St. Peter's church, Mt. Oliver, Pittsburg, was shot in this city, was perhaps fatally shot in the abdomen by Joseph Bruno, who accidentally fired his gun while on a hunting trip. Father Dellutchi is now in at the state hospital in a critical condition.

CHARGED WITH HORSE STEALING

Man with Apparent Monia for Taking Horses Arrested Near Fairfield. Spent Portion of Last Winter in Gettysburg Jail.

"Jerk" Patterson, for a number of years a resident of near Rossville and for the past two years of Adams county, was arrested, Sunday evening, on the Snyder farm, near Fairfield, on the charge of stealing a horse from Amos Funk, Rossville; was given a hearing by Magistrate G. D. Spielman at Rossville, and committed to jail for trial at Franklin county court. He was taken to Chambersburg, Sunday evening by Constable Irvin Rodgers.

Patterson was a resident of the vicinity of Amos Funk, Saturday night, between 8:30 and 9 o'clock and left a note there, which should not be deciphered, except the signature.

Afterward, when Patterson was arrested and talked of the affair, it was possible to decipher the note. It expressed Patterson's thanks for the horse and said the animal would be left at Park Hill.

Mr. Funk did not miss the horse until Sunday and then he found the note.

He and Cyrus Bitner and Constable Irvin Rodgers at once started for the Snyder farm near Fairfield, where Patterson lived in a small tenant house. There they learned that Patterson had gone away, riding the horse.

It was believed he would return and the constable went there in the evening, when Patterson arrived on the horse. He had spent part of the day in a saloon, similar to the White Pine sanatorium and other places.

The constable took him before Magistrate Spielman, in Rossville, who held him for court. Patterson was not at all worried over the outcome of the affair. It is said that Patterson is of weak mind and it is believed by some that he did not intend to keep the horse.

Patterson, several years ago, stole horse from Charles Peters, on the Mishler farm, west of Waynesboro, he said, then, that he had heard his wife "calling him" and that he had taken the horse intending to her. He was returning to Waynesboro when Constable Metzler arrested him in Welty's mill.

Patterson spent some time in the Gettysburg jail but when he was released later when the case was disposed.

FIRE AMENDMENTS

Five proposed amendments to the constitution of Pennsylvania will be held before the General Assembly of 1913 and if they are passed by that Legislature it will be submitted for the approval of the voters that year. These five proposed amendments were approved by the Legislature of 1911 and under the requirements of the constitution must be twice passed by the Legislature before going to the people.

The most important of the amendments and which will probably figure considerably in the campaign of 1913 when half of the members of the Senate and all of the members of the next House of Representatives will be selected, is that proposing that the general assembly may authorize the borrowing of $50,000,000 for improvement of public roads. This amendment, which is designed to provide the funds for the construction of the state's system of main highways, was generally favored in the last Legislature and it is not believed that it will be seriously opposed in the state's session because of the sentiment in favor of good roads. It is the idea to issue bonds as required.

When the proposition passes the next general assembly a special election might be called for the purpose of voting on the amendment and the enabling legislation passed so that the money be made available in 1913.

ARRESTED FOR ATTACKING GIRL

Former Resident of Bonderaville Caught at Hunters Run after Evading Officers for Many Months.

After being at liberty for over a year after he is alleged to have attacked Miss Ira Day, of Carlisle, and teacher of the Pines School at Barnitz, about seven miles south of Carlisle, John Floyd, of Bonderaville, is now in custody in the Gettysburg and Harrisburg Railroad station at Hunters Run late Saturday evening, and taken to jail at Carlisle. Floyd is a white man, about 40 years of age.

It was one October afternoon in 1910, about 4 o'clock, that Miss Day, after closing her school for the day, was walking down the Pines road to the Holly trolley to go home. She was attacked in a lonely place in the road, and she was saved from probably serious injury by two of her pupils who came to her rescue and beat off her assailant.

The man ran through fields and a railroad section men who knew Floyd were his company. Then Detective Bently a good clue. Floyd was followed all over the state, and last week his trail was lost in Harrisburg by the detective, who learned he was in that city.

Saturday Mr. Bently received a tip over the telephone that he was in Hunters Run, and he came to the place on a trail. He was caught shortly before he attended leaving the town.

The Scrap Book

A Little Too Much.

That famous old time London character, Christopher Sykes, once received a sudden ambition to drive a mail phaeton in Hyde park. Though he had little practice, and went well till he drove a cart crash near Hyde park corner, when Sykes, endeavoring to control his horses, sent his off wheel right through the body of a costermonger.

He instantly tossed his reins to the groom, and, in the midst of the demanded carriages and apologies and uncertainty and polarity that the old lady within expressed her entire satisfaction.

Sykes, undaunted, sallied out again that afternoon. He sent him on another crash, however, and once more his pole plowed a breach. Again he ran to the broughtam's door, and, for the third time again he began a humble apology.

But an angry voice interrupted him. "What! You again? No, sir; I'll never forgive you! Twice a day is too much."

For You.

Shall you complain who lived the world, Who clothe the world, who house the world?

Shall you complain who are the world Of what the world does for you?

As from this hour you show your power, The world must follow you.

The worlds ye live in your right hand, Your strong right hand, your willful hand.

You have the whole world in your hand, Do what you do!

Or dark or light or wrong or right, The world is in your hand.

Then rise as you never rose before Or hoped before or dared before

To make the world the world you believe Is better that live it now.

Unite as one, see justice done.

Believe and achieve.

—Charlotte Perkins Gilman.

Yes Late.

A man was walking along the bank of a Scottish stream when he saw a fish rise.

The man's name was Sandy Macpherson, and Sandy's face was a study. He made a bee line for the man in the boat. "Help me, ye fule!" he cried. "Help me to get my name!" asked the man on the boat.

"Jummie Tammie, ye fule!" cried the other.

"Jake—giggle—ly—ly—ly—" "Are you late?" said the other, going nader.

"Late!" said the man on the bank, walking away.

The Man With the Voice.

Bill Hoody, press agent, stopped one afternoon at the Lambs' club to refresh himself with a highball. Hoody's reputation and fell into a lengthy discussion with a lady friend on the subject of voice, her the degree of science that can be developed in the human throat and larynx. The big man said it was the only thing in the evening. Hoody said he thought the woman voice, dimensions and all.

"What loudness are you to?" asked the man with the deep voice.

"Oh-un loudness," replied Hoody.

"Is that so?" said the man. "Can the Chautauqua circuit?"

"I can," the evening, Hoody asked the hotel clerk who the big man was.

"Why, that's Signor Bellini, the representative Champ Clark of Missouri," he replied.

Not Enough For the Money.

An Irish comedian whom we will just call Murphy, was playing a New York restaurant keeper who is "on to" all the tricks of the trade and holding an armful of cats and an ear trumpet in his hand. Murphy and his complimentary entrance upon a vacant seat, whereupon the proprietor came up and gave a restaurant. "I want trips," said Murphy, and he went on, "good trips, but enough trips will do for the present."

The waiter brought it. Then ate it. He had to be content with a dollar bill. Then found that the trips was 10 cents. "Here," he said, "take your trips, 90 cents."

"Sir," said the proprietor," ordered Tom "somebody to trying to cheat me."

So the proprietor came and squinted down the line of figures and greatly astonished at the end. A fair mistake was the correct. "You had a half dozen of trips, sir," said the restaurant man. "The charge is quite right, sir." A fair mistake of trips could be by "By the green hats of Ireland," said the disgusted Murphy, "I thought the fourth of trips is a cart."—Herbert Corey in Cleveland Plain Dealer.

ORGANIZATION IS EFFECTED

Gostyburg Property Owners who Rent Houses Form Permanent Organization, Electing Officers. Purposes of the Association.

A permanent organization of the Gostyburg Tenant Home Owners Protective Association was effected at a meeting held on Friday evening and the following officers were elected, president, William H. Johns; vice-president, Prof. F. M. Smith; secretary, Martin Winter; treasurer, Robert G. Shriver. Those together with Charles M. Wilson, Joseph Matthews and Harry Rank make the executive committee.

The purpose of this association is to protect its members against loss from two classes of tenants, first, those who fail to pay their rent promptly and second, and probably the worse class, those who willingly or through gross carelessness and negligence damage the rented property. This damage consists usually in eating the board walks, fences and outbuildings for fire wood, cutting wood on the kitchen floor, defacing the paint and paper and wood work in the house, allowing grease, dirt and filth in the the kitchen, allowing grains in range and furnace to burn out, allowing water pipes, kitchen range and toilets room outfits to freeze up and break and so on.

With the association property at work it will be difficult or impossible for tenants of the above classes to rent houses.

The association does not in any manner fix the rentals of property or have any power to raise rents, neither the reverse for if losses such as described can be avoided there will be no need to increase rates to tenants.

All persons having property to rent are invited to join the association.

COUNTY W. C. T. U. MEETING

Quite a good representation from the county W. C. T. U. organizations assembled in the Temple Room on Friday afternoon, Nov. 12, to hear Miss Mae Gardner's report of the state convention held at Warren

The report was brimfull of interesting ideas. The convention was described as a city of 18,000 inhabitants, a place of wealth and noted for the beauty of situation. The people are very hospitable and gave a large number of delegates ten friends of temperance reputation. Captain Hobson, Governor Glenn of North Carolina and other noted speakers were present. Striking demonstrations of the good progress or non-progress of temperance in the various counties were made, and encouraging reports given of the forward movement of the work throughout the state.

Miss Gardner spoke in a very touching manner of the trend of little boys of one thousand children who came marching in, singing with all the fervor and enthusiasm they could command "Tolonce must go! Saloons, saloons must go."

The convention was exceptionally good and Miss Gardner brought much to enthuse and encourage

All present were delighted and impressed their appreciation of Miss Gardner's faithfulness and ability to serve as delegate.

The next state convention will be held at Lancaster.

PROPHETS SEE COLD WEATHER

Think Corn Husks, Large Crops of Nuts, Heavy Coats on Various Animals Tell of Cold Months, Say Local Weather Sages.

Local weather prophets predict a long and cold winter this year. They base their prognostications upon signs which they claim never fail and which have, for many years past, been the "sell-tale" of weather conditions.

The "corn husk" prophet is very busy. He has been out in the fields and examined the thickness of the corn shock. He has found that it is heavier than he felt that he ever has in the past. In the rural regions this is looked upon as an infallible indication of the coming of a very cold winter. They assert, these farmers, that nature always has ample time to warn them that the winds and sleet storms may not blow through it before spring comes again.

Even the apples have a thicker peel than usual this year, according to the rural prophets who have a reputation of being "weather wise." The Red Astrachans, ordinarily thin skinned, are wearing a thick coat for their protection from the winter. The Romanite and the Rome Beauties, winter apples of the more rugged type, are so thickly protected this year than usual. Nature, according to the prophets, is try ing to protect the fruit and seeds against the severes of a harsh winter.

Squirrels have been busy for many say the hickory trees had plenty of nuts, apparently of a larger size than usual. When the trees are cut squirrel nests they were found to be of the usual size, but the hulls were of tremendous thickness. Nature was busy again in the case of the nuts, it is given in the nuts runs the stings of frost and the chills of a long cold spell.

All the nuts that grow in the North are showing the same peculiarities. The gooseberry prophet bases his opinion on the fact that the skin of this berry is thicker than usual. Another old fashioned kind when the snow was three feet deep on level ground and the little in the woods, and the ice was so hard that you could drive right over the fences, was the return at the side of the highway.

Other prophets are putting their faith in the coming of a cold winter on the fact that all animals on the farm are long haired. The indications that their coats will be extremely heavy for this winter. Horses, sheep and others that breed the cold are growing rougher and heavier coats than in the early summer.

A DAUGHTER'S PEACE OFFERING

Unusual Gift Softens an Obdurate Father.

You know pa wouldn't consent to Dot's marriage with Jim, wouldn't allow the wedding at the house or show either Dot or Jim to come here afterward. This went on for years. Jim's been wild and hadn't settled down. It was hard on us all, for Dot was my only child, she had always been her father's pet, and his treatment almost broke her heart.

The years went by, and pa instead of softening against Jim grew harder. Though Jim made Dot a splendid husband and gave them fine home and has child, a boy, the prettiest little chap you ever saw, pa would never so much as him in his bath and was so struck with his little form that he asked him to copy him so he could have a picture he was painting. The picture won a success and brought the artist a fine reputation, all on account, everybody said, of the little fellow's pose as model.

One day Dot said to me, "Ma, I'm going to send pa a present."

"I'm afraid, my dear, he'll send it right back to you."

"Maybe he will, and maybe he won't. Anyway, I'm going to try it. I'm going to get it to him in such a way so that he'll see it when he comes down the first thing in the morning."

"How are you going to send it?"

"Ma, I said I are going to get up early and take it round. You are to let me in. We'll place it on the porch so pa will see it the first thing when he comes into the breakfast room."

I didn't believe it would do any good, but I told Dot I would help her in any way I could, so it was all arranged that they should bring me the gift the next Sunday morning. On Saturday I went to the market and bought a goose that we knew pa would enjoy. When Sunday morning came she was shining bright and beautiful, the birds were singing in the trees and there was a delicious freshness in the air. I was feeling thankful, thinking that if anything could put us in a good humor it would be this glorious morning. A little before 9 Jim and Dot drove up in the carriage, where he carried it from the house by trees, though that was unnecessary, for we were alive up in its nearness, where he couldn't see anything, and Jim carried on quite a conversation with the child as to the ride entrance. I sat them in, and Dot and Jim went to the side entrance, while I went upstairs to keep an eye on pa.

"What a pleasant day," I said. "Isn't it a family custom for you to dress in the country?"

"There's no family party except you and me," he said.

I knew that he was going for Dot, but I didn't say anything more for fear of making him suspicious, so I sat by the clock that it was five minutes to 9, and went to the window and looked out.

We both stood mute looking at what was left of the little gift on the end of the dining room. The marble bust of Shakespeare which had formerly been removed, and in its stead was the statue of a little boy. Behind the form was a bust of Shakespeare, and the boy's right hand was placed on a pair of little arms to us.

"Little darling!" said I. "What a pity it has been broken."

"How do, grandpa?" cried the statue, in the clear, sweet voice of a child. It displayed the rosy features of Dot's little Jim. Jumping off the pedestal, all in the white flannel, he ran to his grandpa, who beat down and took him in his arms.

I never saw pa so overcome in my life. His breast rose in long sobs, and I thought he would crush him. Then he kissed him and looked at Dot and her arms around them both. Dot was crying, but through her tears she managed to keep from doing both. Then he put Jim, Jim down, and without noticing that his clothes were covered with white flannel, he went to the boy's tights took the marble by the head and lifted it off.

Jim—big Jim. I mean—seeing through the crack in the pantry door that the bust had been removed, entered the room, and we put out his head.

Pa put the bust on the pedestal, put his arm around Jim and looked at it. Then he

TEACHERS HOLD ANNUAL MEETING

Week Proved Pleasant and Profitable to the Teachers. Professor Dandora Outlined Work of Rose Town's Business School.

With almost all of the two hundred and fifteen public school teachers in Adams County present, the sessions of the annual teachers' meet Mon. afternoon in Bran Chapel. The program of the day and evening sessions is most attractive and will prove an interesting, entertaining and instructive week for the teachers and the others who are interested sufficiently to attend the sessions.

Opening exercises were held in the chapel at half past one Mon. afternoon with devotional exercises conducted by the Rev. F.E. Taylor of the Presbyterian church. The address of welcome was made by Dr. F. M. Sikis, representing Gettysburg College. His remarks, of a general nature, made the response. The first address by an instructor was on "Pedagogical Rights Boards" by Prof. Warren and the second on "The Science of the Institute" by Dr. Ellis.

ADDRESS OF WELCOME

After expressing regret at the absence of President Granville, whom Superintendent Ruth had invited to deliver the address of welcome, Dr. Sikis, the dean of the college, acted as substitute.

Referring to the fact that the assembly had gathered without rules, with a special norm for the teacher of each grade and one common name, for them all, he dwelt with special approval of the common mean. Magister, as shown by its many functions of the teacher to be a leader and comrade of his pupils, is of them studying together, rather than as preceptor who treats them as empty receptacles in which to put the treasures he had in his impart. True, he was a leader with authority, and with the natural. Reason idea he freely used the rod as a magic wand with which to point out the ring the refractory, but the comradeship of work was implied throughout.

There was also the spoken gave a cordial welcome to the teachers, stating that it was realized how dispensed the college is on the good work done in the public schools. A variety of courses is offered by our colleges but for each course there is required what is considered an equivalent grade of preparation, and for this preparation the normal must look for large measure to the public school teacher. The work is at its beginning and all know the importance of beginnings and foundations. And for there should be a close community between teacher and pupil much more should this relationship be close between teacher and teacher, no matter in what grade they may be.

Cheerfully therefore, the speaker said, are the doors of Bran Chapel thrown wide open for the teachers of Adams County in their annual institute. It was a pleasure to welcome a convention of physicians or lawyers of gentlemen or civil engineers. For all such are set for the welfare and progress of human conditions, and yet each will emphasize in his particular school teacher. Hence the welcome to any body of such intelligent and women deserves to be specially strongly and cordial.

DAY AND EVENING SESSIONS.

Monday evening the attraction at the Teachers' Institute was the Tyro-Adams Clayton and Vollers. They gave a delightful evening's entertainment before a large audience of teachers and townspeople. All of the numbers were enjoyed and the audience was not at all stingy with its applause. For a half hour before the session commenced quartet the college orchestra played. This will be continued during the week.

Tuesday A. M. there were three addresses of interest on the published program. Rev. E. S. Ludwig, pastor of the United Brethren church, conducted the devotional exercises. Dr. Ellis subject was "Hebrew Education." Prof. Charles F. Sanders, of Gettysburg College, gave an address and Prof. Warren had for his subject "Time Saving in Arithmetic."

There were two addresses at Tuesday afternoon's session of the institute. Prof. Warren outlining his address "Him that Has Gits" and Dr. Ellis talking on "Ideals," giving a practical talk on a rather impractical theme. Wednesday the devotional exercises were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Ellis Baker, pastor of St. James Lutheran church. Prof. Warren's subject was "Methods for Arithmetic" and Dr. Ellis' "Human Mensuration" the latter proving of special interest to the college students who had been urged to attend by A. G. Martin, superintendent of the Cumberland Valley State Normal School also gave an address during the morning session.

The evening session was given over to Governor Robert S. Glenn, of North Carolina, who had to an immense audience for an hour and a half on "Our Country, Its Possibilities and its Dangers." The lecture was one that will long be given in Bran Chapel, the speaker picturing first the events immediately preceding the Civil War, passing rapidly to the Third Day at Gettysburg, of which he gave a most vivid description, recounting the trying days of the Reconstruction Period and then telling of the wonderful recovery of the South and its progress especially during the last twenty years. The dangers of the country—lack of respect for the law, petty greed in politics, especially with party spirit, leave trails—were pictured with brilliancy here and there and the speaker had all to join in an effort to make a better country, a country worthy to be the entire audience with him, all rising and standing with uplifted hands at the close a fitting close to an inspiring talk and a large part of the audience went to the depot to meet the governor with Governor Glenn and to bid him one of their appreciation of his visit.

Wednesday evening a number of the teachers held a dance in the Armory in Rose Town which was a most delightfully every seat taken and the annex held many more. As the quartet had been engaged for the week it was found to be a excellent proof of their popularity. The dance was a most enjoyable affair.

Dr. Ellis continued his instruction in the Wednesday morning session, his on "Moral Training." Prof. Warren spoke of the rapid growth of pupils in the Rose Town business school and teachers should take to understand the difficulties of the subject. He called his lecture "On Troubled Waters" and with a number of illustrations with another, "On Calmer Seas," in a high he spoke of difficulties to be met with and how they might be advance in age and discretion. Dr. Ellis' subject was "Public School Teacher," Hon. B. A. Simard, the college president, addressed the educational exercises.

Prof. Charles F. Sanders appeared this afternoon before the Institute. The present tests concerning the Summer Normal School at Gettysburg College, being next year. The school will open the first Monday in June and will continue until the opening of Chautauqua, the latter part of July. There will be a number of courses to be given each of which, it is expected, Prof. George F. Bowers, of Rose Town, will teach. No charge. There will likely be one in each of the public schools, while the normal course is assured.

It was this last course which Prof. Sanders more especially is to call the attention of the teachers. He outlined briefly the instruction given in the first of January and an attractive booklet was distributed to the teachers which, it is hoped, will bring many teachers here for the six weeks' school. It is the intention to give Normal Union of Adams, to afford such an opportunity for the teachers as may not be no other school of this character in the county and it is probable that teachers from other counties will also attend. The teachers' Friday morning, adjourned session was devoted to discussions by Chautauqua and Summer Schools.

The last session was held Thursday afternoon on "The Ideal Teacher" by Dr. Ellis and the "Closing Exercises." On Friday the devotional exercises were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Lee Baer and the following were given, Prof. Warren's subject "Mental Arithmetic" and one by Dr. Ellis' "Horace Mann." President Granville addressed the institute on "Character and Intelligence, "the various reports were heard and adopted and the session adjourned.

The evening entertainments were of a higher character than usual and drew large houses, Thursday evening's entertainment being even better than that of the evening preceding. The music of the chapel, usually considered very entertaining, was not lacking and there was little available room left. The principal feature was Dr. Fellows' lecture who gave a two part program, first a humorous one and then "Passing," a little comedy with music, introducing many of the local celebrities of Rose Town. "I Dreamt that I Dwelt In Marble Halls," "Tone Tri'l Remember Me" and a number of others.

MORE STORIES FROM HUNTERS

Bear Hunting Parties Busy Interesting Tales. Deer Hunter and Why Mine Shooters Quit Deer. Woodsmiths Buy Number.

Deer hunting stories are numerous in Mount McSherry. Mr. McSherry, the town pay old son of Isaac McCaslin, the Mount McSherry merchant, has the distinction of being the youngest deer hunter to bring down his buck. On Saturday morning he ask permission to go deer hunting which was reluctantly granted by his parents as account of his youth. Permission secured he went to the woods and shot another young man for the mountain. They hunted until about dinner time then started for home when they saw a deer. They both shot and the deer fell. They then found a stick with the young McCaslin, with the sagacity of an old hunter, cut across that would it off and got another shot which pretty nearly finished the deer up and shot it in the head a short range He then dressed the deer.

On Thursday morning Wm. Stauffer, a nestorean, took his rifle and went to the mountain. Mr. Wm. Deyer walked up to the dancing pavilion. He noticed something about four hollow into him, killed him and was back at the trolley station in just nine minutes.

A hot from Dutfield bet been at the Mount Hotel that he could not walk bad to go home one day recently to visit his mother. He took the bet and The boy, he is but 17, started very reluctantly and went along with his two companions. He made up his walk to the trolley line. He stopped at the Mount Hotel and was going behind a clump of bushes look'd around. Just then he saw a deer about four rabbits his head and slunkhorns sat from behind a shrub clump. The lad took aim and shot the biggest. The cap failed to explode. Pulling back the hammer he tried again and again the cap was dead. The buck remained motionless. Reloaded the gun pulled back the hammer, took a quick aim and pulled once more but still this time the ball in the shoulder above his heart. He cut his throat and, getting his knife, took the buck's throat to camp.

A Harrisburg professional man saw a deer about the same time in the vicinity of Carson's cafe and instinctively pulled up and blasting away drove a steel ball into the animal's left shoulder. The poor animal dropped but by the time the hunter had reloaded and had it might be a doe, as at that distance he could see no horns and he hurried up and mind its misery and very properly the commission of it. It turned out to be a bet distinctly visible horns.

William Lee, a resident of Waynesboro, killed his first deer on Thursday. He is a member of the Monroeville Sportsmen's club and lives on the Old Cold Springs. The deer weighed 150 pounds.

George Overcash, Monroeville, of the same club, killed a 160-pound buck on Thursday. Mr. Overcash has secured a deer weighing 198 pounds

Hunters say the deer is plentiful but the high wind makes it difficult to approach them. It is said that the deer cannot be heard in the forest.

WANTS DAMAGES FROM RAILROAD

Traveling Man who was Hurt Near Lemel Brother Wants his Hand Still Paid. Claims he Dropped on a Switch Point

Scott has been laid up since the accident occurred and has been under the care of Dr. J. W. Croft, of Wey mouth. He is now able to walk around on the aid of a cane. His injured foot incased is a mocassin.

It is claimed by Gettysburg people who witnessed the accident that Scott was walking along the track when he was warned by the brakesmen not to do so he disregarded the warning it is said, and stepped, his foot striking a broken bottle lying at the side of the track. The foot was a ragged edge which cut a thick piece pointing upward. This penetrated the injured foot, which is now and a somewhat painful injury. Scott, it is understood, will not be able to foot attack a switch point, causing the injury. The bottle with blood on it was found some time after the accident.

STATE GETS COUNTY LAND

Twenty Thousand Acres of Valuable Timberland in Adams and Franklin Purchased by Commission as Site for Forestry Purposes.

Title was taken on Tuesday by the Pennsylvania Forestry Commission to 20,000 acres of forest land in Adams and Franklin counties, which will be added to its forest reserves, the purchase having been consummated by Commissioner of Forestry Robert S. Conklin after long negotiation with the South Mountain Refining and Iron Company. The tract, which is known as Pine Grove Furnace, is one of the old iron manufacturing properties, the land having supplied the wood for the charcoal furnaces which made the iron in Pennsylvania, 75 years ago.

The purchase, which is the largest single acquisition made by the Department for several years increases the area of the state forest reserves in the Cumberland Valley to 100,000 acres and makes the total extent of the reserve in the state 980,000 acres.

The land lies in Cumberland and Adams counties and adjoins the Caledonia Forest reserve, established last by Theddeus Stevens, and the Mont Alto Forrest tract, which are now state property. It is covered with oak, chestnut, pine, poplar and hemlock and in addition to having a large growth of timber contains iron ore, coal and small tanks and water and log leases, from all of which the state will derive an income.

NEWS NOTES FROM COLLEGE CAMPUS

First of the Four Lenborn Course Stories Dubbed-Will be Four Tuesday Evening, Plays Week Progress.

Rev. J. B. Meister, of Lancaster, will be here next Tuesday evening to deliver the first lecture of this year's Lenborn Course. The subject chosen will be "Ben-Hur" said the address will be illustrated with a large number of stereopticon views. The course last winter was very popular and the local college people pride themselves from it. Rev. Dr. Meister recently received the degree of Doctor of Divinity from Gettysburg College.

The final game of foot ball for this season will be played at Lancaster on Thanksgiving Day with the old rivals, Franklin and Marshall. The outcome of this contest will retrieve many of the disappointments of the season and the eleven is working hard to get in shape for the game. A large number will be represented by its best team since the Penn game and the students and college people pride of Senators will play Bloomsburg Normal at Bloomsburg on that day.

The three plays, "An Easy Mark," "The Fifth Commandment" and "Finding Father" that are to be given in Bran Chapel on December 8, are being rehearsed daily under the direction of Prof. Moser and the casts are all progressing nicely and it is hoped that a thoroughly delightful entertainment is promised.

Saturday evening at half past eight o'clock the college band will hold a sing fester in the gymnasium for the students to attend. The band is one of the many musical organizations at the college which is doing very good. The combined musical clubs will take a trip during the winter months and it is hoped that it is arranged. It is intended to take in Washington as one of the cities on the route.

REWARDED FOR SAVING TRAIN

Man who Saved Excursion Train to Gettysburg on Memorial Day at Last Year Recognized by Carnegie Hero Commission.

For saving an excursion train to Gettysburg from destruction at a burning trestle on Memorial Day 1910, Thomas L. Waters, of near Waynesboro, has received from the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission the sum of $500 in cash. He has been notified that he will receive, also, a silver medal for his services to humanity.

About 11 a. m. on Memorial Day 1910, Mr. Waters discovered that the trestle on the Western Maryland Railroad at Price Church, not far from Waynesboro, was on fire. He endeavored to put out the blaze and worked at this task for a lot of energy. In a short time he heard the approach of a train and abandoned his efforts to extinguish the flames

He failed to accomplish this and then, in order that hundreds of people abandoned his work, started up the track toward the train and his shouts of alarm stopped it just at the beginning of the trestle.

The train was a heavy excursion special bound for Gettysburg and the Memorial day services here. Except for Mr. Waters' discovery of the flames and his signaling of the train it is altogether probable a very disastrous accident would have occurred.

Hon. B. F. Wiley, of Waynesboro, by whom Mr. Waters was employed for a long time, made known the facts to the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission and on a recent visit to Waynesboro with the $500 and will be given a silver medal.

Mr. Waters is originally from Frederick. His father was the late John G. Waters, a brother, Charles Waters, Esq., is a practising attorney in the Frederick bar.

The recipient of the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission's bounty is a widower. He has one daughter, Mrs. Jennie Mitchell, in Baltimore. An uncle lives at Thurmont.

For many years he was in the employ of Hon. B F. Wiley, at Linden Hills, south of Waynesboro, recently he has been working on the farms and in the orchards in the vicinity of Mid vale.

The money he has received from the Hero Fund commission he has deposited in a Frederick bank.

SCHOOL BOARDS TO REORGANIZE

New School Boards All Over the County will Elect Officers on Monday. Old Boards to Pay Teachers for Institute.

All of the public school boards chosen at the November election will organize on next Monday by electing officers for the next seven months. The elections will be effective until the first Monday in July, the beginning of a new fiscal year, when they will again expire, this time for twelve months.

Under the new school code there will be in Adams County forty four directors thus before the old number of 40 to a board being reduced to five and the total being cut down from 200 to 220. The two independent school districts, Conewago and Littlestown, both their terms appointed by the court some months ago and they will not organize on Monday.

All the boards will hold their first meetings on Saturday at which time they will pay the teachers for the institutes held at the several districts. Every one of the 111 teachers in the county attended and each teacher is entitled to extra pay of $15.00 for the week, less such teacher's salary prevented by Providential causes from being present. The new boards have not secured but otherwise the attendance record was perfect. This information has been given to the superintendent both by the various boards.

Supt. Ruth has notified them of the secretaries of all the school boards and they will be filled out after the organization. Blanks will also be sent returned to the superintendent's office last month by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction. The new code does not affect the election was on, there was a provision which did not allow the boards to meet and organize before as they do now. There was much opposition to this, however, and the boards will for five years but the boards which elect new treasurers will have to have the retiring treasurers books audited at once.

PLANS TO RAISE THE ENDOWMENT

Methods of Raising Gettysburg College's Endowment Fund Outlined in Pamphlet Published by President Granville.

President Granville has published an attractive pamphlet regarding the raising of the $50,000 endowment and building fund. In addition, circulating the methods to be used and giving much interesting data. In this work which he is so great moment to the future institution. The pamphlet says among other things:

The General Education Board (Rockefeller Foundation) proposes to contribute $50,000 to the permanent endowment funds of Gettysburg College when the alumni and friends of the institution fulfill the following two conditions.

They must secure $150 000 in cash or valid subscriptions to the endowment fund before July 16, 1915. An additional year is provided for when college spread this fall and the heirs of P. G. Gluebrecht, of Spring Grove, Pa., have generously subscribed $5,000 more, there remains $90 000 to be raised in cash or in subscriptions payable in not more than five equal annual installments of $18 000 each between this date and July 16, 1915.

The date of $90,000 now resting on the College must be paid before July 16, 1915.

To recapitulate, there now remains to be raised in cash or subscriptions 90,000 to be secured before July 16, 1915, in cash for the payment of the college debts and $90 000 in cash or good and subscriptions by July 16, 1915. In order to secure the $50 000 offered by the General Education Board. Gettysburg College must raise in cash there will be $240,000 added to the assets of the College, $200 000 is now accumulated and $40 000 is added this will free the College from a very burdensome debt and more than double its endowment.

The following methods are proposed to be used in the endeavor to raise the money for the payment of the college debts.

By soliciting large contributions from individuals and corporations in this and outside of the college constituency.

By securing subscriptions from every living alumnus and all friends of the institution.

By the co-operation of District Synods of the General Synod of the Lutheran Church. At the last meeting the West Pennsylvania Synod directed that a committee be appointed to plan for the securing of funds within its territory for the payment of professor's chair in Gettysburg College to be named the West Pennsylvania Synod Professorship.

By securing endowment on the monthly plan. Under this method a donor may transfer her property in whole or in part to the College or may secure that she receives thereon during her lifetime.

By bequests.

Notes has been received that the Gettysburg College Alumni at the meeting last week started a movement for securing money for the new endowment fund of $50,000.

COLLIFLOWER STORE SOLD

Adams County Hardware Company Purchases Store of J. H. Colliflower. Will Restock and Renovate. Possession in Taken.

On Tuesday the Adams County Hardware Company purchased the entire stock and fixtures of Joseph H. Colliflower on Baltimore street, taking possession at once and intending to restock and thoroughly renovate the store as soon as arrangements can be made. The purchase of the store property are Charles S. Duncan, John D. Smith and W. Cleveland Hall.

Mr. Colliflower has accepted a position as manager of the hardware department of the store of the Kline and Hoffelm Company in Canton, Ohio, one of the largest firms in that section and, in addition, will have a financial interest in the business. He will leave with his family for Canton, on December 23, and will take with him two clerks, one Lancaster and the other, Miss Young who has been now for two years employed in Mr. Chi Namel dpomestications at the Colliflower store. Miss Young will have charge of the paint department of the store under the new management in Canton.

The present stock of the store is to be entirely overhauled and the store will be restocked with the latest and most improved lines of everything in hardware and goods of that character. The alterations to the rooms, which are to be made very attractive, will be taken up as soon as the various details have been arranged.

The Christmas stock is now being displayed and the management is preparing to handle the general holiday trade. Mr. Colliflower will remain in the store to assist the new manager until he leaves for Canton.

STALLION ATTACKS MAN

Henry Wolf, twenty years old, son of George A. Wolf of Taneytown, is in the Johns Hopkins University hospital in a critical condition suffering from a badly mangled arm. On Saturday 10 days young man went into his father's stable to feed one of a young stallion. The horse was very spirited, never before having had on a bridle, and in the struggle to hold the bridle, young Wolf was knocked to the ground and trampled on by the animal. He arose to his feet, when the stallion again attacked him, impristing his teeth in his left arm, which was badly crushed and mangled.

Several farm hands attracted by the screams of young Wolf, carried him to a place of safety. Dr. Frush, of Westminster, treated the injured arm, which on Friday began to swell, and it was thought by Dr. Frush to have become infected with blood poisoning. Dr. Frush advised taking him to Baltimore for treatment. The hospital physicians hope to save the arm by special treatment.

LAUREL DAM TO REMAIN

Much concern was felt at Carlisle when the announcement was made that the sale of the $6,000 acres of land to the state, because of the possibility of the removal of the storage of the dam and numerous cottages at Laurel, a pretty summering resort. The dam is one of the largest in the state, and Carlisle people have built several cottages along the banks. Officials of the Ice and Coal Company have sent word to Carlisle that the dam and other details will permit the dam to remain, and by this assurance the fear of damage to is done to the state's property. Yearly the dam is cleaned of the sand which is washed from off this body of water and shipped to all points in central Pennsylvania.

MISSION SERVICE

WOULD CONTINUE THE LINCOLN WAY

State Highway Department would Make Spread Road between Gettysburg and Harrisburg a Continuation of Lincoln Way.

That the state highway to be built between Gettysburg and Harrisburg under the provisions of the Sproul bill may become a continuation of the Lincoln Highway, from Washington to Gettysburg is the hope and purpose of State Highway Commissioner Bigelow, who has announced that when the state road from Harrisburg is due to reach the county line, he will confer with who is waiting to see whether or not the Lincoln Highway will pull away at the coming session of Congress and he is very hopeful of such action being taken.

The above information was given by Chief Engineer Foster of the Highway Department. If the plan is carried out the road from here to Harrisburg will be built in general conformity to the design and plans of the Lincoln Highway. In that event the road would be a continuation of the great transcontinental tribute to the Martyr President.

That the Lincoln Highway is to be in reality continuous to the millionth impression on all sides among those who are interested in the movement to bring growing every year since the project was first launched and many persons who were at first opposed to the idea are now among its enthusiastic supporters.

The promised visit of Mr. Bigelow to Gettysburg in connection with the reviewing of the York poles between Gettysburg and Harrisburg, which was somewhat delayed, the Commissioner making frequent efforts to get here but being unable to do so, owing to calls from so many sections that the trip to Gettysburg was not a practicable-ship up to this time. This week, however, Mr. Bigelow will be able to get here to take up with him and citizens the condition of the much traveled stretch of road.

VALUABLE MULE

DIES FROM BARNES

After twenty hours of roving, biting and pawing at its stable a mule belonging to Harry Trenda, of Mount Joy has unsaddled Trenda morning at five o'clock from the rabbet. The animal died from the effects of the fourth of August by a dog, supposed to have been owned by one of the farm hands. Mr. Orncoot was cutting oats and the animal was found dead when he passed. The dog was a long haired yellow animal and it is thought to have been seen in Mount Joy township later.

The mule showed no signs of any effects until Monday morning when he refused to eat and began to paw. Suddenly it became unruly, started to bite at its legs and tried to run away. When it died Mr. Trenda succeeded in unhitching it and getting it into the barn. Dr. E. D. Brosius was summoned and while he was unable to determine the cause of death it died. The head has been shipped to the State Veterinary Department at Philadelphia for examination.

It is not generally known that the county owns good part of the law contained in a case like this. The township holdings are left in the hands with several of the neighbors who had seen the mule in and, following the dispo-sals by Dr. Stadium and its veterinarian, Dr. Brosius, the animal was then prosecuted to the county commissioners for payment.

The maximum sum allowed is $100, varying according to the value of the animal, determined by the law governors. It is said that the mule is this case was worth about $200 so that Mr. Orncoot's loss will be heavy even with the county paying a portion.

HUNTER SHOOTS HIS BROTHER

While hunting near the Blue Mountain House, Saturday morning, Sim Ish-ler, of near Smithsburg, was accidentally shot by his brother, George Ishler, of the same place, and died at a locally wounded. Several shots were deeply imbedded in his leg but their force was partly spent before they reached Mr. Hahn. The young men were hidden from each other by a dense thicket and George Hahn did not know that his brother was in range of his gun. The injured man was taken to his home where he died shortly after.

CREMATED WHILE HIS HOME BURNED

Mont Alto Man Meets Horrible Death as Home Burns over his Head. Lived Alone and Dad Thought to have Caught fire by Accident.

Jack Kavanaugh, an employee of the White Pine tanneries near Mont Alto, was burned to death as the house which he lived in, located near the tanneries, caught fire about Saturday midnight.

Kavanaugh was about 50 years old. He was married, but separated from his wife a year ago and was not a patient. He built himself a small shack in the woods, about 600 feet from the tannery plant. Little was known about him. He was from Baltimore and previous to going to Mont Alto had been employed by a prize at Sparrows Point, Md. He worked at painting at the tanneries.

For the past several days Kavanaugh had been slightly ill. He had symptoms of the grip and when home on Saturday was lying in bed in his shack. He had a small stove going and it is thought that on Saturday night he went to sleep with the draft on the stove. It likely became overheated and ignited the woodwork.

About 11.45 fire was seen inside the building by a passer-by and he went to the shack and broke open the door. A sheet of flames met him when the alarm was given and water was gotten on the fire. The shack was destroyed and in the debris was found the badly burned body of its occupant. The body was taken charge of by coroner.

All his effects and papers were destroyed and no one about the camp knew of any relatives or friends of the unfortunate man.

Unless some relative of the man is found his ashes will be buried in the cemeterian graveyard

There was a rumor that Kavanaugh's home might have been set on fire by some incendiary, but this was not far from the site of his burning. They had been a number of fires around Kavanaugh's firewood and some words had passed.

THEY PLAYED CHESS.

The Lesser Afterward Learned Who Was Playing with the Lord.

Baron Hengstenmuller, the Austrian diplomat, was famous for his chess ability, one day at a house in Washington met a young man of reputed skill as a player and each when the introductions were made. Chess was at once the topic of conversation and at those in the company, and presently the young man was invited to a game. The host would be highly honored if the baron would play with him.

The baron consented. They sat down. Hour after hour passed. The baron looked up from the table checkered and found the young man still puzzling over the checkered and found the young man still puzzling over the problem. The chessmen were placed again and, after not very many moves as before, the baron looked up to see the young man pushing the paper and himself checkmated.

After the dinner the baron came back. He wanted another game, being somewhat chagrined at the way with which he had been beaten. As he came in he found the young man with his head propped with his hand. The afternoon bloodfolded and playing against six, two opponents at once. Who was the young man was Pilsbury.—Saturday's Evening Post.

POLICE STATION THEIR QUARTERS

Future Battleship Residents are Warned from Hotels in Wrightsville and York and are Forced to Sleep at Police Headquarters.

Bound from Perrytitle, Md., to Gettysburg to make their future home on Milton Updegraff and family, the pampered baby only a month old, were compelled to seek refuge from the cold at police headquarters in York Sunday night because several hotels in Wrightsville and that city would not accept the accommodations for which they offered to pay. It is said they were ordered because the family were not attired to the satisfaction of landlords and clerks.

When they called at police headquarters in York blankets and pillows were furnished them but Christian home, which, because of the prevalence among the states of a threat disease, could not receive them and the family were made as comfortable as could be under the circumstance.

The Updegrafs were on the way to their future home in Gettysburg. The household goods had been shipped here Saturday and the family followed on Sunday. Upon their arrival over the Columbia and Port Deposit railroad at Columbia Sunday evening, they learned it would be impossible to get a train to Gettysburg until Monday morning. They crossed the bridge to Wrightsville, but were unsuccessful in procuring admittance to a hotel there and took a trolley car to York. There they registered at 9 o'clock and applied to four or five hotels, but were informed that there was room for them.

As the hour was growing late and the children restless, an appeal was made to the police. Lieutenant Hiller communicated with the Christian home, but learned of the prevalence among the inmates of a threat affection which prevented the family being sent there. A vain appeal was made to the Children's Aid Society, but as there was no reply to the telephone call it was finally decided to keep the family at headquarters.

WAR IN FAKE ASSOCIATION

A lively scrap is on among the stockholders of the Hagerstown Fair Association. The annual election in January there will be an opposition ticket, and in the meanwhile there will be much agitation throughout the Cumberland Valley by "pros" and "cons." The spirit among the stockholders is due to the fact that many improvements and the Fair Association, in which there was practically a "boycott" of horse races about the fair because the job printing was carried on at headquarters of that place.

The newspaper publishers declare that the job office gave a very low price on the execution of printing and that competition caused thereafter. Officers of the Fair Association declare that the managers of Hagerstown not only boycotted the fair but endeavored to hurt the merchants of the town by their circulars and cards. Stockholders are rallying to the support of the newspapers and to the tournament officers, and it will be a merry war.

Many stockholders also are indignant because, out of the money of the association turned tickets good for only one admission each day and one admission to the grandstand each day. The same ticket was issued to the press.

PROGRESSION NEW ST. JAMES

Cold Weather Halts Operations on Exterior of the New Church; but Busy Boys will See Rapid Progress on the Interior.

Cold weather has halted progress on the exterior of the new St. James church and little if anything will be done on the outside until spring. But a result the battery and remainder of the timber will remain unemployed and the bell will not be put in position until the opening of warm spring weather. This was determined upon on account of the danger of the mortar cracking.

Busy days are being spent on the interior, however, and William H. Armor has a force of men working there preparatory to installing the steam heating and electric lighting plant. Concrete has been laid in the portion of the basement where the plant will be located and there will be no delay in finishing this work.

Carpenters are working at one part of the church where white cement ceiling panled in the Sunday School room looking toward the arrival of the plastering. Plastering, however, cannot be done until the building has somewhat heated.

Windows have been placed in the Sunday School room, some of which bearing the windows from the old church which will remain where they are now in place, while at other points temporary windows have been put in to allow the workmen to accomplish to which to carry on operations.

All of the large contracts have been given out by the building committee, the new contract, awarded a few days ago, being the last which was considered. It is expected that during the coming week operations will begin on the interior of the church and that early in the spring the entire portion will be ready for use. It was first planned that the church be accompanied by Christmas time but unavoidable delays made this impossible.

VIEWERS JURORS DRAWED

U. S. G. Ritter, John W. Hafer, Sr., and Levi Buttorf viewed the property of Mrs. William G. Kraft, widow of the late owner of near Porters. Thursday, on the application of the Commissioners of York County, to annex damages sustained by Mr. Kraft through the Baltimore and Hanover trolley line. Condemnation of the property from the west branch of the Conewago creek was the result.

The company claims the right to take water from Furnace Creek and Wheatfield Creek, the water company into the Codorus Creek above the mill. Mr. Kraft claims damages to the amount of several thousand dollars, and the case involves the right of the water power landowners with the mill operators.

A LEGEND OF THE COLORADO

How Chief Rainbow Won Singing Water For His Bride

Out in that magnificent country through which runs the Conewago there was once an Indian chief of such imposing mien, such great strength and such marvelous bravery, that his own and neighboring tribes attributed to him supernatural powers. This chief, Rainbow, inherited much of his fortune; but when he died Singing Water, whom the father had brought old to live with him, was left in the hands and representatives of the neighboring tribes to witness the ceremonies of the abduction in favor of the youngest brave. Now, as the ceremonies began, the face, the father, addressed his son, befriended him from his youth, then consoled the visiting chiefs to keep the peace, ending by placing his young man's hand a spear which the old chief had carried for many years.

One of the chief's present had brought no danger, Singing Water, to witness the ceremony. Rainbow was a handsome young brave but Singing Water saw the young chief and loved him. Before this ceremony, however, with her father in her country Rainbow had come to the Indian land, he had been promised to another, Snake-In-His-Hole.

Singing Water had no sooner decided that Rainbow was her choice than Snake-In-His-Hole, seeing that Rainbow would be chosen as a ruler over the tribes, made preparations that they should go together to her father and claim her as his bride. The ceremonies they made the journey, crossing the Colorado, to the encampment of the chief. He did not dare grant their request, for he was afraid of Rainbow and Snake-In-His-Hole. Having met with a polite refusal, they at once began their journey north, on their return journey. On the way they met Singing Water sitting on a rock waiting to bid adieu to her lover. Snake-In-His-Hole rode up to the rock, which was to the height of 100 feet, and, with a quick movement, her arms about him and whispered in his ear. "You shall not live." Rainbow, before him on the horse, he gave the word to ride on and at the same time the beast to go at full speed, and before the Indian people standing about had realized what he was doing Rainbow, with Singing Water, was out of sight. Snake-In-His-Hole followed, calling on his men to pursue.

Snake-In-His-Hole, seeing that escape was impossible, rode up to where Rainbow and Snake captured and, burying his tomahawk in the unfortunate head of the fugitives, calling at the same time for the pursuit to cease. Then, with the face when he overtook his son chided him for his cowardice.

It seemed to the lovers that the old man was relenting, for the bitterness they between them and safety, and its appearance was so threatening that they could descend a thousand feet to the bottom of the canyon without fear of on them, and when they climbed the opposite side they would be beyond the very reach of arrows.

Thus they started at the river, Snake face bade his son return to him the bride which he had won honorably, and began the descent to the river with the Singing Water. Rainbow rode on to the spear and led Singing Water down the trail. Snake-In-His-Hole, seeing that they found the old chief sitting on his horse on the edge of the precipice, drawing between two rocks which he had selected for the purpose and preparing for above him.

Rainbow was not long been used to considering Snakeface as superhuman that he was inspiring sight of the old chief, and, turning his head, right, his spear poised, his eyes fixed upon their victim, he called to Singing Water and Snake-In-His-Hole himself, though brave and strong, was afraid to look at the maiden, received.

"Stand aside, my maid" he cried. "We respect you for your past deeds and love you for your future, but we must run."

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

Mercer, Pennsylvania's Great Fullback.

Although the Pennsylvania eleven was a poor showing on the gridiron this season there is one noticable warrior who played brilliantly in every game, others. He is Captain Mercer. It is Mercer who has been the mainstay and mono in football togs today then the best lineman in the game. Mercer's end gets up his speed wonderfully. He increased his value to the team nearly 50 per cent by mastering the straight arm. Mercer's use of the straight arm does the better than any man Pennsylvania ever had except Bill Hollenback of the 1906 eleven.

Penn to Have Strong Basketball Team.

The prospects for a championship basketball team this year at Pennsylvania could not be better. Five men of last year's five have returned former Captain Watson, Daniel Peters, Jacob Swoyer and Kennedy. The latter's strong leadership and good material from last year's freshman team assures the Red and Blue of a fast and second string team.

The comparative chances for a championship are fair, however, when one considers that other colleges have lost men and some will have to build an entirely new team. Pennsylvania, however seems the only five to score a victory over Cornell on the Cornell floor, remains almost intact and will be the team to beat in the intercollegiate series. Some of these are Graham, who was a star on the freshman team and later scored five baskets against Penn; Bodine, who played with Graham on the freshman team and Shinn, who played two years on the varsity team as a guard. The first game will be played on Dec. 19.

Olympic Team May Lose Stars.

According to the Olympic rules, any athlete who has represented any country in which he is a citizen may compete in behalf of Canada at the last Olympiad games, which were held in London in 1908. Don Ahearn is the American champion in the half mile and record holder. The Canadian champion in the same event was Ernest Hall, who was born in Montreal and has also and Jones, who was born in Montreal and has also and Jones, who was born in Montreal and has also and Jones

OLD RIVALS WON THE FINAL GAME

Gettysburg Closed its Foot Ball Season by Losing to Franklin and Marshall. Only One Point Margin for the Victors.

Two fullbacks, one to handle a punt and the other to kick a goal from touchdown, cost Gettysburg their annual game to Franklin and Marshall at Lancaster on Thursday, the score being 6 to 5

Neither side scored during the first half but in the second period Franklin and Marshall got a touchdown in practically the same manner as Dickinson got their first score at Carlisle several weeks ago. Gettysburg punted for the Lancaster collegians to Gettysburg's 5-yard line and a speedy end got the ball to Gettysburg's 40-yard line could recover it. A forward pass resulted in a touchdown. Gettysburg played strenuously in the last half and a number of times by superior carrying the ball over for a touchdown on a delayed pass. Captain Hall of Gettysburg, Brel Imnaugh's fast earlier in the game by kicking a goal from touchdown and the score was 6 to 5. Many other several goals from the field before the close of the game but none of them attempted on just before the whistle blew but all failed.

The game was a good one and witnessed by several thousand people Gettysburg pupils one of the playing fights of the year, but two failures at critical times costing the coveted victory.

The season has not been what might be termed successful for Coach Hall as against its University of Pennsylvania being about the principal reasoning feature tonight victories were gained over Lebanon Valley, Johns Hopkins and Delaware by small scores. Summary of the season:

FORMER NORA DAVIS TO RETURN HOME

Wife of Rev. Farrar Under Protection of Her Brother.

London, Dec. 1—Reports to the effect that Mrs. Frederick Percival Farrar, wife of the disgraced rural chaplain and sister of Richard Norton Davis, the American novelist, had accompanied her husband to Italy, are not true.

Mrs. Farrar, who came here in the Mauretania at the urgent request of her sister, will leave her back to New York, starting tomorrow.

Mrs. Farrar and the Mauretania last Wednesday, thinking she was arriving in N. Y. and Mrs. Farrar left the boat early after a day or two at sea that I was a week from port and instead of making the nature of the trouble—that it was not illness, but not more serious. When I arrived in London I learned of his arrest.

"My sister, who met me at the pier, was terribly upset by the news of her husband's arrest. What affects me most is that people will not know the truth about him and will may think that we did not make every effort to help him in the hour of the man my sister married. But I have been with Grace every hour and have seen as a splendid type of Englishman, a true man, absurd charges of persecution and spite.

"I would anyway under the circumstances have left England, because I hesitate in mind that the man was a victim of his wife's chicanery, and what his family would do."

BROWN WINS GRAND PRIZE

Smashes Record Record in Auto Race at Savannah.

CONTEST WAS THRILLING

Finish Proved Sensational, Less Than Three and One-half Minutes Separating the Three Leaders—American Cars Fail to Finish.

Savannah, Ga., Dec. 1.—Racing over a track burnished by a cold wave, but a warm, the multitudinous automobile driver, rounded the grand prize on the Savannah automobile course.

The time he served the distance and rouse to aim, to having won the record last year, his average last year was much faster than that of 1910, his average speed for 411 miles being 74.61 miles an hour, a new record for the world's championship.

Eddie Hearne, another young millionaire driver, second in a fine car, was second in this race, finishing less than three minutes behind the winner. Hearne was driving the car that Bruce-Brown won the grand prize with last year. Ralph de Palma finished third and Ralph Mulford was a half minute behind Hearne.

The whole race was thrilling. There was not a moment during the drive it seemed that Hearne was not at white heat. In the second lap Bruce-Brown broke the distance of the course in 12.47, and in the seventh and fourth Hearne was 12.46 and 12.45 of the two laps in 12.46 each. Three were the fastest laps made on the course for the day. In the fifteenth lap Wagner, who was a tremendous contestant and bear as he was in the race, struck a rut and broke the steering knuckle. For a moment the control of his steering was lost to him. Throughout the ride he was compelled to quit the race, although he was not injured.

Hearne had led the race the greater part of the 411 miles, and did not leave-in-the-race.

Louis Disbro, a young millionaire, drove his Italian Fiat car in fourth. Ralph Mulford, Harry Grant, were Erwin Bergdoll, of Philadelphia, driving a Benz car, and Caleb Bragg, also a Philadelphian, driving a Mercedes car, were the only contestants in the race.

Louis Disbrow, in a Pope-Hummer, finished fifth. The Abbott-Detroit cars were crashing when the race was declared ended.

Motored Out In Last Lap.

Ralph Mulford, driving the Van Dedell car at the opening of the race was forced to drop out. He was the only American car to figure, was a motor trouble. He was in the fifth very last lap. In the last mile of the grueling contest within the fifteen short of his car broke and he did not finish.

When Bruce-Brown rode back to the grand stand after winning the beautiful red Fiat car his mother was the first person to greet him. Throwing her arms about his neck, she embraced him and kissed while she wept for joy unrestrained.

Wagner's cars started in the race, but six of them dropped out. Harry Cobb was driving a Simplex Fiat and almost at the start because of a break in the steering gear. Bob Burman, driving his Mercer car in the sixth lap because of a broken axle. Caleb Bragg, driving a Benz, was out for a similar reason. Wagner's car was wrecked on the tenth lap by reappearing. He was not hurt, but looked bad quit officially several laps later.

Disbrow's car was driven by everybody with his Marmon car, was out on the fifth lap. He jumped the track at Montgomery Creek, where the bridge was being built.

Charles Basle, driving a Mercedes car, which also cut a cylinder head in the eleventh lap and was forced to the lowest lack was that which he had driven in the race. When driving Fiat car only fourteen seconds behind Hearne, he was compelled to stop for the next round he knock the steering knuckle of his car and was out of the race.

The last six laps of the race were two-and neck—a battle of the Second Fiat and Hearne.

POWERS MAY TAKE HAND IN CHINA NOW

Japan, England and America Expected to Act.

Tokio, Japan, Dec. 1.—It is believed in influential quarters here that the time has already been reached for the situation in China for mediation by the powers.

Which power will take the initiative, however, remains to be seen. The opinion prevails that Japan, England and the United States will take concerted action for restoring peace in China.

Yuan Thinks Peace is Near.

Pekin, Dec. 1.—Peace negotiations here have received printed confirmation from the leaders of the revolutionary organization, threatening to boycott the government if agitation making a loan to the govern ment.

Premier Yuan Shi Kai told a member of one of the leading dailies of the article would be terminated in eight days. As he was leaving the office of his statement may mean that he expects to be overcome.

Military dispatches from Hankow say the advance of the revolutionary army rje decreasing. Hunan troops on the rebel side have refused to fight and 5000 rebel recruits in the province of Ho-Nan have been disarmed by rebels and shot their officers.

There is chaos throughout the provinces of Kwang Tung, Kwang Si and Yun Nan. Both Republican and General Wou's forces surprised and defeated by Republicans. Wou has fled to the title of governor general. Many were killed and the wife and entire family of his followers are prisoners.

GIRL DIES LIKE SAINTED

Tries to Hide Fatal Burns by Change of Clothing.

Mount Holly, N. J., Dec. 1.—Left alone with her younger children while her parents spent most of the day patronizing the Thanksgiving festivities Eadie, nine years old, death her of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fleming near Indian Mills, was so badly burned that she died.

To get some hot water Eadie built wood fire in the kitchen stove and put a kettle directly over the flames. Her clothing caught fire. The child was in flames out with water from the pump but not before she had been badly burned.

Fearful that her parents would scold she tried to hide what had happened by changing her clothing. When her parents returned home from the festivities they found their daughter on a couch in pain.

Fires at Rabbit Wounds Six Women.

McLeagh, Kan., Dec. 1.—While he was shooting at rabbits with a shotgun Jay Bowers, a farmer living near here, shot six women who were standing on the front porch of his home. A rabbit ran between the women and Clarson fired at it with a shotgun. He was arrested and released on bail after the six women, all of whom were injured.

Grief Over Tragedy Leaves Him Mute.

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 1—Grief over the loss of his five little daughters, Ethel and Phoebe, who were killed when their road playhouse caved in, physicians believe, has destroyed the power of speech of Antonio Nicolino Sr.

GOOD ROADS AND THE FARMER

They Mean a Great Reduction in Its Expenses.

A SUPERVISOR IS NEEDED.

Without a Competent Man in Charge a Street Duel of the Labor is Wasted. Farmers Should Get Together and Help Highway Engineer.

It is worth while for all intelligent people to have some general idea concerning the simpler facts involved in the art and science of road building and maintenance. This is a matter which should appeal particularly to the farmer, for to him more than to any one else the well built and scientifically maintained road means a saving of time and money in marketing his products and makes easier the attendance of his children at school and his family at religious services and increases the social intercourse which is needed to make farm life what it should be. An highways are intended to afford a hard, smooth and as costly as possible a horizontal surface, over which the great instrument of civilization, the wheel, with its burden, can be made to move with the least possible friction. Every unit of friction accounted is a measurable element of cost either in time, power or damage to the road and carriage. For every foot of distance he traverses the wagoner is incurring a tax. The amount of the tax depends on a properly constructed and maintained road may be as low as 8 pounds per ton, but this increases with to-wave in grade, or the condition in which the road is found. Because this tax is not paid out in actual cash to the owner of the farmer does not realize that it is coming out of his pocket all the time, but if he will think a moment he will realize that it is an infinitely larger rate of tax than any direct tax which he may be called upon to pay to keep the wheels of civilization going.

The cash value of a good road has been summarized under the following headings:

First.—A reduction in the cost of hauling.

Second.—An increase in the value of lands within its zone of influence.

Third.—Increase in productive value through making uncultivated lands accessible.

Fourth.—The substitution of the more profitable crops for the less profitable crops.

Fifth.—The ability of the producer to market his produce at a time when the prices are more favorable instead of harvesting his produce when the roads accord.

Realizing now wiser hard roads are costing the farmer and what good roads will mean to him, the question is how can good roads (and by good roads is meant roads which are good 365 days in the year) be obtained and maintained, for it is just as necessary to maintain a road after it is built as it is to construct it in the first instance.

It is now the consensus of opinion that more money is now spent their lives simplying road problems that the only possible plan for any county or township to adopt is to set apart a portion of its money for the employment of a competent road engineer to properly locate its roads and supervise their construction and maintenance. In order to avoid the evils of the present system of road construction from one county to another it is important that the talent policy would be for the state to have some kind of supervision over the road work of the counties, certainly by the employment of competent road engineers for the proper location of roads. Under the present system of working the roads it is not a rash statement to say that at least one cent tenth to one-fifth of the time and labor expended in public road work is absolutely wasted.

Be Strong

Be strong!
We are not here to play, to dream, to drift.
We have hard work to do and lodes to mark.
Show not the struggle—face it. 'Tis God's gift.

Be strong!
Say not the days are evil—who's to blame?
And fold the hands in listless impotence, frowning on fate.
Stand up, speak out, and bravely, in God's name.

Be strong!
It matters not how deep intrenched the wrong,
How hard the battle goes, the day how long:
Faint not, fight on! Tomorrow comes the song.

A Powerful Agent.

Two Dublin lunatics were strolling along together when one of them drew a revolver and gave the other his choice between a dollar and a dead body were taken out the revolver. It seemed an easy way of making money, so after thinking it carefully over for some time they arranged that one of them would fall in and that he would "receive" him.

"And then," Mike explained, "we'll share the £5 between us, two pound fifteen each."

They found a fairly quiet spot, with nobody about, and the first jumped into the water. Only when he saw his companion go down and come up gasping did it occur to Mike that neither of them could swim. So he made neither dastardly act the bank and watched his friend go down and come up again for the third time. Then a fatal wave rolled over him.

"Mike! Mike! For the love of Ireland, save me, quick, or we'll only get 15 shillings apiece!"

Pleasant rse the King.

One of the most delightful institutions sanctioned to be found in the days of parliament is the "fifty-second year of George II., chapter 105," which asserts that the penalty imposed under it shall be given half to the king and half to the use of the parish. Under the act had been passed it was discovered that the penalty which the act provides is transportation for fourteen years. The first intention was that the penalty should be a fine of £300, but the parliament promptly emasculated a term of penal servitude. But it forgot to omit the clause providing for the division of the spoils between the king and his indigent subjects.

Superfluous.

For stirring purposes Miss Fiyun bet closed on the town hall after shows, lectures, political meetings and Sunday exercises and other doings and power a constant job to the janitor. Recently, however, he fancied he had a soft snap, and left the key at the janitor's office to register it. "What is it, Mike?" asked the latter, as Flynn shoot him half, per hour. The town stood up in the rear, they do, as they have no seats during the entertainments. Ain't we a warrant would O. ne'y per hour, if we would get a watch the floor where O'l could get at it, but, certainly, they would not all over the legs of the chairs in the back row sat on the places where the seats can be fastened to the floor, so' bord work is to give a man of no age to stood down wi' arrut it off. There's a favor O'l would ask of yez before I particularly be resete to it." "What is that, Mikey?" "Godsie, O! would ye be after me permission and authority to do away with the back row of the auditorium? Nobody likes to sit in the back row anyway, per hour, of course, and it is to have one in the hair at all."

Right in Town.

According to John Latimer, a clerk at the Rexlaech hotel, a big Chicago traveling man, while strolling in the city recently tried to call a little south side Indian town by long distance telephone. He was informed by the girl on the switchboard that the call would cost him $5 cash. Immediately he raised a screamin fit.

"Why," he shouted, "in Chicago we can talk to hell and back for 25 cents."

"Well, I know," said the girl, and signalled nasty hard along the wire. "But Pekin is the city limits."—Louisville Times.

ANNIVERSARY AND DONATION

St. James Christian Endeavor Society Holds Twenty Third Anniversary. Presbyterians Remember Pastor.

Sunday evening the twenty third anniversary of the St. James Christian Endeavor Society was held in Brua Chapel in the presence of a large congregation. The service was preceded by a twenty minute song period and during the evening these were selections by the Junior Society, the Rudisill Quartet, and a trio consisting of Mrs. H. E. Rice, Miss Ruby Wenner and Miss Rebe Miller. The reports of the Junior and Senior societies were made and Dr. Chris preached the sermon his text being "He saved others, himself he can not save." Dr. Chris's sermon was on the flen of Self Sacrifice.

The Presbyterian congregation on Tuesday night young bride Mrs. Frank H. Taylor a large donation of fresh and canned vegetables, chicken and other good things to eat. The members assembled in place all things in the bottom room of the church during the early part of the afternoon and when all had assembled Rev. Mr. Taylor, who was passing, was called in to be greeted by fifty of the members and the array of gifts. It was a complete surprise Mrs. Taylor who was absent from home at the time was quite surprised and delighted when she returned.

Sunday the congregation took up the matter of disposing of their debt of $600. A portion of it—$400—was raised by subscription and the rest, it is said, will be provided for in various ways.

VOTED BEER CAMPS

Many Gettysburg people visited the four camps on South Mountain Sunday and were entertained by the hospitable hunters. All the camps on the mountain, but guests on Sunday, the beautiful weather and a desire to see the trophies of the hunt were the principal incentives which took the people out. Good hunting club dinners were served.

It is said that in this section there has been killed about fifty bucks this year, many of them by individual hunters. Deer have been very few, not more than half a dozen being killed in this time. The heavy fine and the general sentiment against killing the female deer seem to have made the hunters more careful and as a result there have been few infringements of the law. The hunter on the mountain during the latter part of last week had a number of does and was undecided to front of him for some seconds, the animal not having sway until he stepped his hands.

Another hunter, seeing a buck and wishing to get a shot at it, crept up to until within a few yards of the animal when it suddenly heard him and darted away, the hunter calling after him "If I dare, stop."

DIED FROM MOTHER'S ANGUISH

Daniel Ordner, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Fr. Ben. Zollinger, died at 6:45 p. m. Friday evening, of membranous croup, aged two years and six days.

The child became sick on Friday morning and his condition became gradually worse with each succeeding hour.

Mrs. Fra Ben. mother of the dead child had been on a visit to her sister, Mrs. Frin. Ann Ordner, Littlestown, and notified Friday evening of the child's death. She returned home immediately.

The funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at 1 p. m. at the home of the parents, the Rev. C. F. Steck officiating. Interment in Evergreen Cemetery.

SHIPPED OUT 10,000 TURKEYS

Adams County Farmers Contribute Largely towards Thanksgiving Market. Receiving Fifteen Cents a Pound. Fine Birds.

Ten thousand Adams County turkeys, it is estimated, were shipped to the eastern markets for Thanksgiving.

Gettysburg alone contributed shipments of 1500 turkeys, it is said. New Oxford, Littlestown and East Berlin 1000 each, York Springs 800, and the following points at least 500 each: Guernsey, Biglerville, Bendersville, Fairfield, Orrtanna, Cashtown, Idaho and Gardners. About 500 Adams County turkeys were taken to Baltimore for shipment individual shipments and farmers who combine to ship their own. Contractors about a thousand more making a total of no less than 10,000. A uniform price of fifteen cents a pound was paid for turkeys delivered after the election. Election was made as to age. Some fifteen paid only twelve cents for old birds.

The turkey crop is plentiful and declares that the retirement of many farmers in selling is going to mean less of the turkeys for the Christmas mas market. Until a few days ago the outlook for a good Thanksgiving was not good and this is said to be a sign that the Christmas market will be poor also. Early in the season contracts were paid at Thanksgiving time, in advance of actual delivery and during over other years and Adams County turkeys passed the time in safety. Farmers elsewhere did the same thing and as a result there was a shortage at Christmas time which caused the price to increase to cents. This year it is prophesied by wholesalers that the opposite will likely happen, not so many birds and if Thanksgiving and a glut at Christmas.

Adams County turkeys are said to be of exceptionally fine quality this fall. Those who have been dressing them for Thanksgiving say that they are of too thin have such good fowls been known to be so fat and plump throughout. One dealer says that practically all the turkeys which he has shipped weighed from twelve to fourteen pounds dressed, a very good average.

Several cases are given to this, one of which is the standard corn crop which was excellent in every section throughout spring and summer for the turkeys subsisted on it. The weather in the recent cold "spell" in New York and Baltimore was the best for the betterment of the market during the latter part of the week.

OUR APPLES IN DEMAND

IN CALIFORNIA

State Zoologist H. A. Surface declares that Pennsylvania Baldwin apples are the best in the world, except that of Oregon, which is a Baldwin and that with care Pennsylvania can produce as good as the state's crop should not command a fine price in the West as well as in Eng land.

"I just returned from Within Berry, where I attended a meeting of the horticultural society, and saw the finest apples I have ever seen in any where," said he. "W. J. Lewis, of Gettysburg, had a box of his fine shipping Baldwins to a man in California at the rate of $8 a bushel basket. This is the same Lewis of Gettysburg can do. Lewis has handled his orchards with the idea in mind of produce fruit."

CLASS GAME

The annual foot ball game between the teams of the sophomore and freshman classes of the high school will be held today afternoon at 2 p. m. at the home of the juniors, the Rev. C. F. Steck officiating. Interment in Evergreen Cemetery.

ARRESTS FOLLOW LIVELY FIGHT

Herman and Curtis Kane Punished by Jesse Scott for Interference and are then Arrested. Gave Bail for Appearance at Court.

Herman C. Kane, Taneytown, and Curtis Kane, of near Arendtsville, preached his flen and Jesse Scott, Jesse Scott on 's ork street Saturday afternoon about five o'clock with the result that Scott thrashed both of his foes and then had them arrested for assault and battery. The Kanes were held for Court, giving bail in the sum of $500 each.

They come to town Saturday and in a conversation with the flen about o'clock had arrived. Scott was shoeing a horse in the blacksmith building when Herman Kane came along and proceeded to kick away the chairs Scott called to him to bring it back and when no effort was made to do so Scott did after him. He confronted by the other Kane who had picked up a coal shovel from the wagon and was prepared to strike him.

Not hesitating an instant, Scott knocked him down and then, set the other of the pair whom he also put on the ground. Both put up no resistance was repeated, one to a while the double chastising left the flen on their feet.

Constable Harry Shaffer, deputizing Officer Wilson finally arriving and sleuthing the affair which he placed the two Kane under arrest. The hearing was held before Squire Bitt and they entered into the give bail for their appearance at Court.

Scott, it is said, is preparing against them, returned to his task of shoeing cost.

CAMPAIGN STARTS

Monday marked the opening of the Red Cross Christmas Seal campaign in Pennsylvania. From now on in every city, town and hamlet the Christmas Seals will be bought by persons interested in the work of the Red Cross Society in this state. The Pennsylvania Christmas Seal campaign of 1914 Poster contests has ordered 2,000 000. A million and a half of these have already been distributed during the two last month the remainder will be placed before January 1.

The seal used this year is better looking in design than last year's. It is a green wreath with a cross in farmhouse in the centre. Near it are two Christmas candles and the inscription in the words American Red Cross and the Red Cross Seal. The seals will be printed Merry Christmas and Happy New Year. Besides the usual size therefore, will make an attractive addition to Christmas presents and all packages.

The Red Cross Christmas Seal of the White Plague in Pennsylvania. Every penny received from the sale goes to the fight against it directly. The seals are sold at one cent a people. Every seal placed upon the back of letters, on packages and on Christmas presents helps to stop forward in the struggle against the White Plague.

HELD FOR COURT

A hearing was held in Hanover at 10 o'clock Saturday morning before Justice of the Peace Lewis D. Bell in the case of the Commonwealth vs. John Sipe, charged with the murder of Davenport, of Mcllhenrytown, charged by C. A. Siecker, a signe manufacturer with assault and battery, as a result from his factory. After the evidence had been heard by the justice some week ago, the two defendants were returned to the county jail, Sipe to the House of Correction to the House of Detention to await trial at court.

Young Sipe, a man about 25 years, and Davenport, who lives on Main Street, Mcllhenrytown, is a man well on in years. They were arrested by High Constable Deitzen and held for a hearing, some time ago. Young Sipe is charged with causing serious injuries to return to York and when Davenport is charged with assault, holding them for court. Davenport was held in bail for $500 and Sipe in good bonds down there." Mrs. Longbaugh, who offered to go bail for her son, but he didn't want it.

CLOCK MADE IN GERMANY

A. P. Shull, of Hanover, has a clock which he claims is at least 150 years old. It is a wooden clock, all the works, and runs 24 hours by one winding. Spring-driven clocks had not been made when the clock was manufactured in Hanover, Mr. Shull has had the clock in his family for many years. It was left to him by Mr. Shull's grandfather, who died many years ago near New Oxford and is buried in the "Plum Church."

PLAY POSTPONED

The High School Alumni will not give "Billy's Boogaloo" on December 1, as announced. They will produce a play some time in January. A location has not yet been made.

KEEP YOUR GROCERY MONEY

AND GET MORE AND BETTER FOOD

"I do not know what we will do if the cost of living keeps on increasing as it has in the past few years." Have you ever heard anyone make a remark like this? Of course you have.

Don't you yourself say it sometimes? Perhaps you have left awake night trying to figure out some way to feed and clothe your family as you would like to, and still save money.

The high cost of living problem is a serious one. Prices on food and other necessities are high, if you buy in the ordinary market.

The papers are full of all sorts of schemes for solving the problem, but most of these plans eventually fail because they are impracticable. Prices are unfortunately because it costs too much to get merchandise from manufacturer to consumer.

The ordinary selling system is too cumbersome—too many middlemen to handle the goods. Too many salesmen have to take out a profit. Too many losses to stand.

Montgomery Ward & Co. have solved the problem of living costs. This statement may seem broad, but it's true, as thousands and thousands of our customers will testify. How did we do it? Simply by cutting out every unnecessary expense. We buy direct from the source of supply at 1/3 to 1/2 less than the ordinary buyer can, and avoid manufacturing cost. We sell direct, at one small profit. This is why you can get your grocery and all other bills paid for less. You get better food, too, because we buy in quantity. So as to help us we can guarantee that all food we sell is pure and wholesome.

We even go so far as to make certain products ourselves because we cannot buy quite the kind we want. These are our Red Star products, purer than the pure food law demands.

OUR PLAN WORKS THIS WAY

It's easy to try our plan. We have a big grocery book. Let us send it to you. Look it over and then send your name on our regular grocery mailing list. Then you will get our special grocery catalogue every two months and can take advantage of all our special bargains. To the left of this announcement you will find a coupon. Simply cut out 50 numbered coupon books. Look it over carefully—select and check the books you need and we will send them to you free of charge. Then, after you have tried our groceries and prices—convince yourself that what we say is a correct: Don't waste your money on anything but what you use. Then send us an order. Make it a small one if you are in doubt as to the quality of some article you purchase. Say that we back up every article we sell with our guarantee of satisfaction. You must be pleased or we will refund your money and pay all transportation charges. So, you see, you run no risk whatever in trading with us.

Give our plan a fair trial. You can't lose. We know we can save you money and want you to know it, too.

SATISFACTION OR MONEY REFUNDED

A Twentieth Century Marriage Contract

By EDNA PHILLIPS

Copyright by American Press Association, 1913.

Marriage in con respect is very different from what it was a century ago. Then there was one hand to the fandangle, the other to the fan. Now modern discoveries of the young women of the day have changed the order of things work. This educates them to a self dependence of which their grandmothers did not dream.

Charlotte Hazlet was one of these girls who worked. Work to her was not necessary. Her father was abundantly able to support her, but she could not brook idleness. She possessed a good voice and would have liked to go on the stage had her father not objected. As it was she gave singing lessons. But when she engaged her self in this occupation she had no intention to her doing anything whatever. She gave her lessons for fun.

She had been engaged several months without marrying. Indeed, she had no fiance as to their marriage, and time was hanging heavy on her hands, and so to him about the matter.

"I'm getting tired of this shape for that," he said. "Leave it to me. Just think of it—I'm ready to pop the question and you're ready to say yes."

"Do you propose always to keep me guessing as to yourself?"

"Why would you wish to hear about me? I'm a commonplace sort of fellow and your opinions upon them would only bother me. But I'll write a novel to a monocrats trait. Give him his part and he'll carry you along. I'll be to guide him and he'll guide you."

Young Hazlet was not content the matter at the time. Miss Blake consented to do what he asked her, and every succeed the evening after of his visits he brought her a chapter of his novel. He was devoted in her in other ways, but as to the latter they were drives and sheltering her other amusements indeed. She knew that he was old fashioned way, as his father had been before him, and that he admired and treated his grandmother.

Charlotte found that a different age from his mother or his grandmother. She had been educated to believe that the new order of things was better than the old, and she was willing to assume her part of the duties of this development. And that part was to support herself, having spoken once on the matter. She was not dependent upon her father for doing so again. Nevertheless, when Hazlet's novel was finished and Miss Blake was a representative of the "unsupported" class.

Meanwhile the flowers came regularly. At last came the novel with its dedication and its flattering. As to the flowers, she sent them back with a letter saying that she was not her special protege, and some of the letters since she declined to receive them. It certainly did not intend that she should be a party to a flirtation with another man. However, now of no other way to show the devotion, while she was a modern girl, and as one her privileges in vogue half a century before.

One evening Evelyn appeared at her home as usual. "I am happy to announce that my affairs are now to confidence to you at last," she said, "and support you in the same style as that to which you have been accustomed."

"But am I to do?"

"What are you to do? I don't understand you."

"I infer from what you say that you will be able to take care of me," he said, who "will make every care of the flen." Then, as she looked at him, "My mind will be a vacuum."

"Why do you say that?"

"I am not concerned with that. You have been my inspiration ever since in the present day. I only know that I am a creature of habit and that I cannot in a new form of myself and don't want one in take away the old. If I could be, as a married woman, it would be necessary to change that of the poss I should be interested in matrimony. I'll be a bachelor girl, that's any use for it."

He here found the petiet of engagement insipid. Ten have sent me flowers and a letter saying that I have rendered that you didn't send me a doll. Now you come to me and tell me that you propose to be a bachelor girl. I'm not a new figure under a glass case. I'm a woman, and I don't propose to sign a contract to go on the stage for the rest of my life. Evelyn, you are the profession of music for you years. You have a voice that is worth cultivating, that if I ever enter upon that profession I will be willing to devote my time to my voice here. That is what ob ject I am a musician. I am willing to enroll as an assertion."

"I never knew you to have that for a while, but I can know what it was by."

"It seems to me," he said, "that you are proposing something as much for an if or to since I am to be a bachelor girl. You are the metier of a courtship or in my estimate of the modern of a bachelor girl. I'll have to be a bachelor girl. I will take you on a permanent basis or not at all. I will not give up the career you have chosen to be a bachelor girl."

"Now you are proposing something that means an engagement for a long term. "I agree to your terms."

Miss Blake then threw herself into the work back in the states of her grandmother. She was a "bachelor girl," supply the wants of her children and grandchildren, and was considered a success to consult with him intelligently. The engagement lasted for a year, during by dropped into her own sphere, into her her husband to convey his share.

Forget a Detail.

It is seldom that profit or benefit comes from a detail. Details are valuable as a great feat of engineering that connects two continents. Details are as apropos from his chair and advanced to the platform to receive the applause of his sentiment.

"Yes, listen to me, wife," he said, "and I do not want you to oppose me, for I have it.

"Yes, dear. What is it, then?"

"Why, I have determined that I with the boy to be an engineer."

"But, my dear, what are you talking about? We haven't any boy."

"No, but we will be in a few days, and I've had forgotten that," said the gentleman so to repeated his mind in meeting their.

Real and Ideal.

When Henry Pettit's play, "The Cracker Jack," was put on in Boston George Barrett was engaged to play the part of an actor. Low Archie was to come on the stage and hand Barrett a letter. Then he was to say: Charles Werner. At the first rehearsal Barrett came on the stage, assumed way, saluted and handed his effort the parcels.

"No, no, no, no, no!" cried Warner. "Not that way at all. Before ever waited the that or saluted like that."

Barrett glared, and at the same moment there came a shriek of laughter from the wings. It was Miss Laurence Harris, the then stage manager, was convulsed with mirth.

"What's the matter?" demanded Barrett, turning on her.

"Nothing, oh, nothing," Harris replied hysterically. "Only that Mr. Barrett has been in the navy for several years and has only just retired!"—London Mail.

What, Never?

There was a time when the vogue of "Uncle" was simply amusing. Here is an incident which is a newspaper of the time: "At present there are fourteen companies playing 'Uncle Tom.' Companies formed after S p. m. yesterday." Another story is to the same phrase. "What, never? Well, hardly ever." Here is a story of a writer, for instance, that can either barred his staff from using the word "never," every time it an many articles passed over. "I never," was the unanimous cry. "What, never?" was the unanimous response. "Well, hardly ever," replied the wretched man.—Boston.

Several Candidates for Election to County Offices File their Expense Accounts. Republican County Committee Statement.

Being a candidate is rather expensive according to the statements filed in the office of Clerk of the Courts Jacob F. Thomas, by those successful and defeated at the recent election. Not many of the candidates for the county offices have as yet died; but a few of them show the general characters of the bills the men found it necessary to pay.

W. M. Kost, treasurer of the Republican county committee, has filed his report showing receipts of $1180.00 of which $1063.00 was contributed by the candidates, the amounts contributed ranging generally speaking, in proportion to the importance of the office se is usually the case.

E. H. Berkheimer elected Register and Recorder on the Democratic ticket without any opposition from the Republican side filed an expense account that is the shortest of which there appears to be the Democratic county committee.

Jay E. Eisenhart, defeated candidate for Director of the Poor spent $103.30 which John Manning Harnett, the successful Republican candidate for county treasurer, spent $84.00.

Robert S. White, Esq., successful candidate for district attorney, filed a report showing an outlay of $178.76.

Two of the successful candidates for county auditor have made their state ments. Harry Bream, the successful incumbent of less than $50.00 while George E. Baugher spent $84.00.

"Every person who was a candidate at either the primary or the general election must file an expense account no matter whether elected or not," says Hon. D. Thew, chief clerk of the state department, Harrisburg.

"For every failure to file it, any one who happened to be defeated at the recent primary or election and who failed to file an expense account will be stopped from taking the oath of office for the next term for which elected or even four years hence. It is the law requires it and it is not worth while to disregard it," says Mr. Thew.

Mr. Thew has been asked questions about the matter quite pretty frequently the last few weeks and has been compelled to write a few circulars to all candidates and it will be unpleasant to find some one proceeding to take a person who is elected from to assume office.

first quarter of a century ago John T. Raymond, the famous comedian who was known as the Colonel Sellers and whose dramatic success was the first real success secured. "Steve's Million In It," upon which he decided to produce "The Gilded Age" in London.

The story goes that Henry Irving or Raymond's ex cuse for not producing Gilbert's American Extravaganza, was in the famous vocative "Have I got any girl in mixed up in any puppy love affair, I would like to know her name and history now?"

Fred Bradford called the evening after his friend's departure, as he had told him he would, intending to remain for the afternoon, for he supposed he would find the little miss moping around the house, but was surprise to find her sitting in the drawing room, with her hat pulled on in the most daunting dowry she possessed.

"Papa has told me that you are to be my guardian for a while," she said, "which is very nice. And I suppose the dear old stupid has instructed you to prevent my seeing anything of Henry Brenton, but that is not going aswee on that kid. Why, he isn't old enough to shave, is he?"

"That's fortunate," replied Mr. Bradford "if you have when on."

"Watch me! More likely I'll have to watch you! I'll make sure you're not getting offish on kind that you shouldn't have!"

She looked at him knowingly.

Mr. Bradford grew crimson and mentally "down Henry consider this girl a trifle too fond of looking out for a boy lover I would better look out for her." And he said aloud, "I am afraid one of those little tiffs is more apt to be of getting a man into trouble than the reason of them."

It's all very well for a man to say "Watch me," but one of the questions we in thrown suddenly in his path, and the trouble is he best his guessings. Mr. Bradford from the moment he entered the girl's presence felt as if a beautiful wasp with velvet stripes of yellow and black was flying about him trying to get an opportunity to sting him. Finally he came to go.

"You don't need my attention from me," he said. "I'll tell your father when he returns that you are capable he pass away he'd better put me in your care."

"And you're not coming to see me anymore?"

"Why should I? You say your father is perfectly able to look after you, and you don't need watching."

"Oh, don't come if you don't want to!"

She tossed her head as if Mr. Bradford and she were lovers in a tiff. He was about starting in such he didn't know what it was, and really he didn't want to encourage any especial liking.

The next afternoon, while looking out of the window, he saw Miss Arnold toss but the girl he had promised to watch, driving an automobile, beside which was a young man. Bradford had promised to keep away from her, but soon as he saw Miss Brenton he went to see her, with the intention of giving her a good scolding.

"What do you mean," he said severely, "by driving with that boy?"

"Am I to have no attention what-ever?" she asked, with her head on one side rebellious. "You won't come to see me, and I'm afraid to put up with a boy?"

Bradford was in a quandary. He wished Martin would come home. "Will you promise, then, not to drive?" "In let the boy alone if I come, say I drive a week while your father is away?"

"Why, certainly."

"Do your honor?"

"Yes, on my honor."

"Very well. I'll do it."

The boy left with and the girl beat here. He spent two evenings a week with her, and when her father returned away two months, by the time he had completed his business and Martin or he was on his head or his heels. One evening he lost his grip on himself and told her how much he cared to her. When he got outside the cool night air he felt as if he were a fool bitten off the tongue.

When Martin Arnold returned, Bradford called at his office to welcome him. Martin said, "I have had a few days off and that the door.

"Has Ben been here?" said the latter. "what have you been turning my little girl's head for?"

"I turn her head!"

"Yes, I do. And see that you have been making love to her and she returned it. I don't mind the difference between your ages; but, you see, she has several years' money, and I suppose you'll wait."

"Wait! I'm off. I'll wait—of course I'll wait."

"You have to restrict your calling to Friday and Saturday evenings. School girls have no time for rest."

"Certainly."

"Come around this evening and we'll talk it over. Of course I'm mighty well pleased at the match, you know."

"Of course; so am I. It's very jolly, you and I being chums."

Bradford married the next year, then positively refused to wait any longer.

A Mere Chit

Henry Martin and Fred Bradford were chums at school, chums at college and chums when they were middle aged. Henry Martin was a trifle the older. He had married very young, and had his wife, who left him with a little daughter. That daughter was the cause of a serious row.

"Fred," said Martin one day, "I'm going away on a business trip. Miles will be under the care of the house-keeper during my absence, but she needs a certain attention that the old fellow can't give her. I mean you. I'm afraid of a youngster about Millie's age. Since I don't want my girl to be mixed up in any puppy love affair, I would like you to be her protector pro tem."

Fred Bradford called the evening after his friend's departure, as he had told him he would, intending to remain for the afternoon, for he supposed he would find the little miss moping around the house, but was surprise to find her sitting in the drawing room, with her hat pulled on in the most daunting dowry she possessed.

"Papa has told me that you are to be my guardian for a while," she said, "which is very nice. And I suppose the dear old stupid has instructed you to prevent my seeing anything of Henry Brenton, but that is not going aswee on that kid. Why, he isn't old enough to shave, is he?"

"That's fortunate," replied Mr. Bradford "if you have when on."

"Watch me! More likely I'll have to watch you! I'll make sure you're not getting offish on kind that you shouldn't have!"

She looked at him knowingly.

Mr. Bradford grew crimson and mentally "down Henry consider this girl a trifle too fond of looking out for a boy lover I would better look out for her." And he said aloud, "I am afraid one of those little tiffs is more apt to be of getting a man into trouble than the reason of them."

It's all very well for a man to say "Watch me," but one of the questions we in thrown suddenly in his path, and the trouble is he best his guessings. Mr. Bradford from the moment he entered the girl's presence felt as if a beautiful wasp with velvet stripes of yellow and black was flying about him trying to get an opportunity to sting him. Finally he came to go.

"You don't need my attention from me," he said. "I'll tell your father when he returns that you are capable he pass away he'd better put me in your care."

"And you're not coming to see me anymore?"

"Why should I? You say your father is perfectly able to look after you, and you don't need watching."

"Oh, don't come if you don't want to!"

She tossed her head as if Mr. Bradford and she were lovers in a tiff. He was about starting in such he didn't know what it was, and really he didn't want to encourage any especial liking.

The next afternoon, while looking out of the window, he saw Miss Arnold toss but the girl he had promised to watch, driving an automobile, beside which was a young man. Bradford had promised to keep away from her, but soon as he saw Miss Brenton he went to see her, with the intention of giving her a good scolding.

"What do you mean," he said severely, "by driving with that boy?"

"Am I to have no attention what-ever?" she asked, with her head on one side rebellious. "You won't come to see me, and I'm afraid to put up with a boy?"

Bradford was in a quandary. He wished Martin would come home. "Will you promise, then, not to drive?" "In let the boy alone if I come, say I drive a week while your father is away?"

"Why, certainly."

"Do your honor?"

"Yes, on my honor."

"Very well. I'll do it."

The boy left with and the girl beat here. He spent two evenings a week with her, and when her father returned away two months, by the time he had completed his business and Martin or he was on his head or his heels. A Warm Bathroom
PERFECTION
Every mother should be careful that the children take their baths in a warm room. The risk of a cold room is dangerous after coming out of the hot water.
A Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater brings bathroom or bedroom to just the degree of warmth you want to be sure of. All you have to do is to touch a match.
The Perfection Heater burns nine hours on one filling and is always ready for use. You can move it anywhere it is needed. There is no waste of fuel and heat warming unoccupied rooms. Just the heat you want, when and where you want it.
The Perfection is fitted with an automatic-locking flame spreader that prevents the wick being turned high enough to smoke and is easy to remove and drop back when cleaning.
Dealers in Perfection Heaters everywhere should get quick and big sales and, meanwhile, yet strong and durable—suitable for any room in any house.

TAFT EXPECTS LOWER DUTIES

In Authorized Interview Discusses Topics of Day.

HIS VIEWS ON TARIFF ACT

President Would Modify Wilmot Speech and Talk of His Tariff Board.

New York, Dec. 1.—In the current issue of The Outlook there appears an article entitled "President Taft's Own View, An Authorized Interview," in which the president discusses current topics with an interviewer, as follows in part:

"Question of the tariff issue, Mr. President, if you could begin your administration again, would you regard your Winona speech tomorrow?" the interviewer asked.

"In phraseology, no; in effect, yes. Had I knewa as much as I do now, I should have realized that there are some things one cannot leave to be taken for granted.

"If I had prepared it two or three weeks before and revised it deliberately, as I ought to have done, I should have clarified several passages that particularly, I should have changed the sentence where I practically told Payne tariff act the best ever passed.

"A conservative word would have been a better description than the superlative; for, whatever its shortcomings, the act still contains less to criticise than its predecessors, and it did, as a whole, revise the existing schedules downward.

"I have no fault to find with either Democrats or insurgents for trying to revise any duties they choose. What I object to is misrepresenting the business of the country today, when there is nothing better than guesswork to proceed upon, and then distorting it afterward into a basis for the level of available information is before us. I do not like the charge of inconsistency against the Democrats for compromising with LaFollette on the woodschedule instead of standing by their own figures. If they could not get all the reduction they asked for, they were quite justified in taking what they could get.

"My chief criticism on their tariff activities last session was that they were willing to tear down and undermine as crude and ill digested that they knew was known, if they had pressed to think, that I could not possibly approve it."

"Is your tariff reduction program based on the theory that it will bring about a corresponding reduction in the cost of living?"

"I think that effect is greatly overestimated. My chief objection to a needlessly high tariff if that it hoodlums monopoly. It holds forth a constant temptation to the formation of little trusts, which often are more directly oppressive to the consumer than big ones."

Make Up of the Tariff Board.

"Mr. President, there is your tariff board. There has been sharply criticised for making it up of men who are not tariff experts."

"And that is true; they are not. If I had been appointing a board of tariff experts, I could not have got along with less than twenty-five, in order to be justice to all branches of the subject. What I undertook to do was to get a board of fair-minded, intelligent men, capable of managing a thorough inquiry into costs of production and of analyzing its elements.

"I think we have had, I will our people would, that the present prosperity of the country is due in no small measure to the existing tariff, which, notwithstanding all of its faults, is a revenue-producer. There is a good deal more that can be said for the act.

"It gave us a maximum and minimum tariff and provides what are the highest importance, and which tended to the stability of foreign trade substantially. It gave us free trade with the Philippines, which has made the islands more prosperous than ever in their history, without injury to our American industry. It gave authority that I used to create and maintain a tariff board, which, though not the commission I wanted, is doing a most useful work; and it imposed a corporation tax, on which I had not the least, but which at times I despaired of getting through.

"Now, Mr. President, something of the farmer. What do you propose touching on your calendar of unfinished business for the short session of your term?"

"In the domestic field, I suppose reductions in the woolen and cotton schedules, and possibly in the metal schedule of the tariff, will go to the top of the calendar. These will be founded, so far as my first recommendations are concerned, on the report of the tariff board. I have heretofore intimated that congress will not heed the suggestions of an executive unless I do that. I have no lessen of indignity advisers.

"I am very grateful for the honors the people have given me. I do not collect to deny the satisfaction I should feel if, after carrying up the long ascent can, and striking a balance, they should decide that my four years had been fruitful enough of good to war that their electing me for another day man would be proud of such a

INVESTITURE OF NEW CARDINALS

The Pope at Public Consistory Bestows Insignia.

GREAT AMERICAN PRELATES

A Great Assemblage Throngs St. Peters to See the Picturesque Ceremony.

Rome, Dec. 1.—The final and most impressive ceremony connected with the creation of the new cardinals took place at the great public consistory at the Vatican, when fourteen prelates of the church, including the three Americans, prelates, Cardinals Falconio, Farley and O'Connell, were invested with the red hat, indicative their rank.

Much attention was focussed on the movements of the American cardinals, and large crowds assembled around the doors of the Hotel Ritz after to see Cardinal Farley enter his carriage; count the Hotel Quirinal, where Cardinal O'Connell is staying, and visit the monastery of San Antonio, where Cardinal Falconio was born as Father Francesco monks.

Inside the Vatican unusual excitement was evident, as for four years no ceremony had been held and the centuries not so many creations had occurred at one time. Every available space in all the rooms and corridors within the papal precincts seemed to pass and in the Hall of Benedictions, where the consistory was to be held, was occupied.

After all had taken their allotted places, distant strains of vocal music were heard and the low, expectant murmur of many voices announced the arrival of the pope, surrounded by a picture which then unrolled itself was magnificent.

A Magnificent Scene.

First came the jeweled cross bearer clad by a white-clad figure. Follow him were the cardinal deacons, each in their uniforms of red, black and violet, designed by Michael Angelo, in turn carrying halberds. Then came the Bishop Bishop, the papal Prince, assistan ns they marched, and, after them, the cardinals, all in gorgeous vestments in black, monks in brown and white, bishops in their ceremonial vestions and members of the papal court in black velvet, Elizabethan cos tumes.

Behind were the cardinals of the Curia, about twenty in number, all in robes of red and white, and a small detachment of noble guards. Directly afterward came the venerable figure of Pius X. In full pontifical robes, blessing the kneeling multitude on his way to the throne. The procession closed with another detachment of guards.

When all were seated intense silence fell upon the assemblage, broken by the rising to their feet of the cardinals of the Curia, who proceeded to do homage to the pope and then to congratulate him the papal prerogative new princes of the church. The ven erable group with snow white hair was the gaze of all present.

The American prelates, John M. Farley, archbishop of New York; William O'Connell, archbishop of Boston, and Diomede Falconio, formerly apostolic delegate at Washington, were eagerly pointed out. They, with the other cardinals just created, received the papal throne, and one by one knelt before Pius X., kissing his hand and foot and receiving the papal embrace. They were then led to the places set apart for them to the accompaniment of music by the Sistine Chole.

The new cardinals then again advanced separately to the foot of the throne to receive their red hats, and were held over the head of each recipient in the manner of consecration, while the pontiff repeated the usual form of words. The ceremony ended after which he embraced the suppliant cardinals in turn.

Pope Fails Ascending Throne.

The ceremony was not without some commotion in the vast assembly. Pope Pius, in his anxiety was about to take his seat on the throne, when he overlooked the step, and the papal chair, which was borne on the shoulders of twelve guards, almost was slightly bruised. The cardinals were thrown into confusion, but the pope, his feet and helped him to take his seat. Then the ceremony proceeded.

Each of the new cardinals approached the throne, made three bows, kissed the cross which the pope wore on his right knee, kissed the papal slipper on his left foot and retired to the bench at the left of the throne. This followed the embrace of the whole College of Cardinals, the new ones according to rank, and donned the cardinal hat.

After the entire fourteen had performed the formal ceremonies they in turn knelt before the pope. The host of the day was drawn to a seat at the left of the by two masters of ceremonies, the papal prince assistan ns and the official cup, held the broad-brimmed cardinal hat over him, impressed the solemn aloud the liturgy, while two acolytes of the court held the back and candle.

Wins $1000 For Lost Leg.

Reading, Pa., Dec. 1.—The jury in the case of John H. Bieber against Isaac C. Orath, to recover damages for the allegation of the injuries of his wife, returned a verdict in favor of Mr. Bieber for $1000.

TURKS PREPARE FOR ATTACK

Said to Have 16,000 Men and Thirty Modern Guns Opposite Benghazi.

London, Dec. 1.—Reports received in Malta from Turkish sources are to the effect that Enver Bey, with 15,000 Bedouin Arabs, 2000 Turks and thirty modern guns, has taken up a position opposite Benghazi.

Many fierce attacks have been made by the Turks and Arabs on the Italian positions at Derna and Tobruk. The forces on both sides approximate 15,000. The Italian forces say they have fear to advance beyond the range of their naval guns.

Belated censored dispatches from the Balkan correspondent at Tripoli indicate that although the Italian advance of Nov. 26 was successful, the fighting was less severe than reported, and the losses on both sides, in consequence. The Italians now reoccupy the positions from which they had pulled on Oct. 26, the day on which they reported.

EXPECTS TO GET ASSAILANTS SOON

Officer Says Man Who Shot Aged Man Were Colored.

West Chester, Pa., Dec. 1.—Jefferson Shaner, the aged ex-burgess, who was shot and robbed at his home near here by three colored men, is reported to be sinking at the hospital.

The physicians have located the bullet in his neck by the X-ray, but as it was close to the jugular vein they were afraid to remove it.

Officer Peoples announced that he has discovered the names of the robbers, that they are colored and that he hopes to have them soon.

The police ran out several clews. Officer Peoples tracked the robbers to a point four miles from the scene of the shooting and then lost the trail as the rain washed it away. A son-in-law, Mrs. Sylvester, Shaner's house keeper, says she is sure the robbers were colored, two men and a boy.

Thomas Mc. Mercereau, president of the National Bank of Chester County, and Richard David H. Calder each offered $100 reward for the capture of the robbers. The community is thoroughly aroused and many farmers and citizens are going armed.
